HINT PLOT TO BLOW UP W. U. WIRES

2,000 Telegraphers on Strike at Chicago; Western Union Building Like Arsenal.

OFFICIALS FEAR EXPLOSION

CHICAGO, Aug. 9.—In response to a hurry call from the Western Union officials an extra detail of fifty policemen has been rushed to the company's building. It was reported by the company's chiefs that a plot had been discovered to blow up the company's switchboards.

With 2,000 employes on strike to-day, the Western Union building is a miniature fortress. Police lines are sharply drawn and every precaution is being taken to protect the wires and switches. Officers are patrolling short beats in the basement of the building where the batteries are stored. Thousands of wires exposed to danger are watched by armed officers, ready to shoot any one approaching them.

But fifteen men are at the keys, according to the operators. General Superintendent Cook refuses to say how many men are at work. All branch offices have been closed and the strike is spreading through the suburbs.

"We expect a general strike," declared General Superintendent Cook to-day. "Our operators were all offered the alternative this morning of handling business coming from Los Angeles, and most of them struck. We immediately closed our branch offices and brought in operators from the suburbs. All messages will be handled from the central office until further notice."

2,000 Are on Strike.

Nearly 2,000 employes of the Western Union Company—operators, messengers and check boys—are on a strike here. Three hundred and fifty operators struck at midnight. They were quickly joined by check boys and messengers, and a few minutes after 12 o'clock the usual roar of the telegraph room in the Western Union building was stilled.

The telegraphic work on the Board of Trade was seriously hampered, as all of the early morning business had to be handled by the leased wires of large commission houses, and the force of Postal operators, among whom trouble may develop at any time to-day.

Four operators and a few chief operators remained on duty last night. These were reinforced later during the night by four others. Those who remained on duty and responded to telephone calls to help the company were:

Harry T. Price, acting night chief; George Gutto, assistant acting night chief; George Willis, late night chief operator; Thomas Babb, Evan Jones, Jere Merenese, George Reynolds.

Strike Not Authorized.

The men employed in the company's main office, as well as those detailed to work in the newspaper offices, walked out without receiving authority or orders from their general union officers.

The company's business was paralyzed, very few of the day force of operators reporting for work this morning. They stood in groups on the street surrounding the big office discussing their grievances. The unheralded strike was the outcome of the strike inaugurated twenty-four hours earlier in Los Angeles. The Chicago men walked out when they saw the company required them to handle messages to and from Los Angeles, where non-union men are now at work.

The strike now is likely to extend to every large city in the country and tie up every State, causing incalculable injury to business.

With the settlement of the strike in San Francisco it was generally believed that the agitation would simmer down to nothing.

It was the discharge of an operator in Los Angeles that fanned the smouldering embers of discontent into a mighty flame. The Los Angeles operator was discharged on the ground that he delayed business. His fellow workers, to the number of seventy-five, struck in sympathy.

LITTLE GIRL IS BITTEN BY SAVAGE DOG

The police of Joy street station are looking through the West end to-day for the large-sized black dog which sprang upon six-year-old Pauline Green on Eaton street and bit her savagely on the right cheek. Pauline ran crying to her home at No. 14 Leverett street and, when search was made for the dog, the animal had disappeared. On account of fear that the dog was afflicted with rabies the wound on Pauline's cheek was cauterized.

"I was on my way home at 6:30 last night," said Pauline. "Going through Eaton street I brushed against this dog. He sprang at me and snapped at my face, biting me on the cheek. Then I ran home."

From Pauline's description it is thought that the dog is the same one which recently bit another little girl in the West end. If the animal is caught it probably will be shot.

VICTIM OF HUGE CANINE'S ATTACK

Little Pauline Green was bitten on her cheek by a dog, which is thought to be the animal that recently attacked another little girl in the same neighborhood. Police are searching West End for the brute.

20TH CENTURY FLYER DITCHED; SCORE HURT

CRASHES INTO DISABLED FREIGHT AT SIXTY MILES AN HOUR—DETAILS LACKING.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Aug. 9.—The Twentieth Century Limited on the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern Railway was wrecked at 7:40 a. m. to-day, one mile east of Chesterton, Ind., by collision with a freight train which was broken in two.

The engine and three coaches, according to telephone messages received here, went into the ditch, and the rest of the cars were thrown across the opposite tracks. Reports as to the seriousness of the accident are conflicting.

The railroad officials claim that only the engineer and firemen were injured and that the passengers on the flyer escaped with only scratches and bruises.

Reports from other sources, however, state that the country is being searched for physicians and that doctors are rushing to the scene of the wreck to attend a score of injured passengers.

The wreck was caused by the breaking of the airhose on a freight train which left Chesterton for the East at 7:31 o'clock.

The breaking of the hose under the cars caused the train to double up across the entire right of way of the Lake hore road. One minute after the accident, the eighteen-hour flyer, six minutes late and running at sixty miles an hour, crashed into the disabled train and smashed ten freight cars into kindling wood.

None of the heavy Pullmans was completely turned over, all landing on their sides.

At 10:15 o'clock the Lake Shore wrecking crew had not reached the scene of the accident.

RUNS INTO AUTO; PAYS $10 FINE

SALEM, Aug. 9.—In the District Court to-day Peter Gillis of Beverly was fined $10 because he reversed the usual order of things and drove his horse and wagon into an automobile. The complaint was brought by Charles W. Bidfet of Beverly, an investigator of "Safe Roads" for the automobile association.

The automobilists were Professor Barrett Wendell of Harvard and wife, Judge Edward B. Patterson of the New York Supreme Court and Mrs. Wendell Baker of Cambridge. They are Summering at Nahant and Manchester.

TANGIERS ATTACKED BY MOORS

Incensed by Bombardment, Natives Rise to Sweep Foreigners From Morocco.

HORRORS OF MASSACRE

TANGIER, Morocco, Aug. 9.—The holy war in Morocco has broken with full force. To-day Tangier was attacked. From this city to Cape Nun, along the entire western coast the Moors are in arms determined to drive out every foreigner. In the interior the agitation is spreading rapidly. Tribes from the furthermost corners of Morocco are sending their fighting men to join the Moors.

Fresh fighting has occurred at Casa Blanca. Rabel, Mehedinh, Mogador and Cape Nun are threatened with immediate attack. Foreigners are fleeing to vessels in the harbors for safety. At Cape Jubi, just across the Moroccan border, Moors attacked and raided the town, after surprising the garrison. Every man was killed or captured.

Attack on Tangier.

The attack on Tangier began at daylight with heavy firing. So far no attempt has been made to invade the city. Thousands of armed Moors are gathered outside the city and it is feared a charge may be made at any moment.

Every foreigner in the city who is free to leave has boarded some ship. Those who cannot leave have armed themselves for desperate resistance. The horrible fate of foreigners who fell into the hands of Moors at Casa Blanca has nerved everyone to avoid capture even at the price of suicide.

Arms and ammunition are being distributed by the consuls to all Europeans. Men are being hurriedly assigned to the points of defence.

Against the general uprising there is a pitiably small force of soldiers or sailors to contend. Some of the towns further south are absolutely without defenders and there are no ships to take them off. It is feared all such hapless persons will fall victims to the natives.

Fighting at Casa Blanca.

Six thousand French soldiers landed at Casa Blanca to reinforce the marines on guard there have had to fight ever since their arrival. After a hard struggle, marked by the fiercest kind of hand-to-hand fighting, the Moors were driven out of the city. They have made repeated assaults since to regain possession. Only the heavy guns of the fleet have driven the natives back.

Seven French soldiers and sailors are known to have been killed, and two naval officers were wounded. The French have ocupied every point of vantage and hope to be able to check the Moors from entering the town.

A force of 6,000 Moorish mounted men to-day attempted to rush the town and were only repulsed after a hard fight.

The attack on Cape Jubi was a surprise. The garrison was easily overpowered, and the natives gave themselves up to the sack of the town. The Governor made his escape to Fuerteventura Island, directly opposite, in a small boat.

Surrounds Cities in South.

Only meagre reports have come from cities to the South. They tell of cities surrounded by the Moors who are apparently waiting some signal for the attack.

Frightful atrocities were practiced by the natives who raided the Jewish quarter of Casa Blanca. The traces of the slaughter were still to be seen when the French soldiers recovered posession of that part of the city. Stories of the happenings there have been spread broadcast and have incited the natives throughout the country to join the uprising and plan attacks on other cities in the hope of looting them.

Caid MacLean, military adviser to the Sultan, recently captured by Raisuli, the bandit, is reported to have been surrendered by the brigand to the Kmass tribe, and his early release is expected.

The news of the bombardments, as it spreads to the interior, is inflaming the natives, and they are gathering in all parts of the region. The most serious trouble is the possibility of the uprising spreading to Algiers.

WAR OF YEARS FEARED.

Hourly uprisings indicate that the situation will keep France and Spain busy for a long time, possibly for years. The people are turning against the authorities of the cities and, if the movement continues to progress it will probably be necessary for the Powers charged with maintaining peace to shell or invade many cities.

The opinion prevails here that the revolt stirred up by the pretender, who has been warring against the troops of the Sultan for some time, will spread into Algiers and will eventually direct the eyes of the world to the entire north of Africa. It will no doubt be necessary for France to send an army into the interior to put down the revolt.

30 COUNCILMEN JOIN IN PROTEST TO MORAN ON LOAN BRIBE RACK

Councilman Myron J. Pierce, Snapshot by a Boston American photographer.

Object to Private Hearing Before District Attorney Preceding Appearance Before Grand Jury. Committee of Five Present Protest.

After a heated meeting of about thirty members of the City Council to-day in one of the rooms of the Courthouse, where they had been summoned to meet before the Grand Jury and tell what they know about any bribes being given or offered in connection with the passage of the big loan bill, a committee of five wa sappointed to appear before District Attorney Moran to protest against their being cross-examined by him before they testified before the Grand Jury.

The committee, with Councilman Sheehan as spokesman, conferred with District Attorney Moran, who admitted their right to refuse to be examined, but insisted that, as good citizens, they ought to answer his questions.

The committee consisted of Councilmen Sheehan of Ward 17, Hatton of Ward 4, McCarthy of Ward 8, O'Brien of Ward 14, and Doherty of Ward 2. These men filed into the District Attorney's office about 11 o'clock and came out half an hour later.

CALLED TO ORDER.

The action of the councilmen was started by Councilman Tom Doherty of East Boston calling the men to order in the court room, where they were quartered awaiting the call of Mr. Moran to appear before him for a talk before they responded to their summonses from the Grand Jury. In all about sixty of the members of the Council had appeared at the court house. Others of the seventy-five members could not be reached by the officers who served the papers.

"This summons," said Doherty does not call for us to appear before Moran. It only calls on us to go before the Grand Jury. It is up to us to say whether we will go before the District Attorney in the face of what the summons calls for.

"I do not think we ought to appear. Here is Councilman Sheenan. He's a lawyer and will give you some advice.

"I shall not give you any advice," said Sheehan. "B[illegible] I shall not appear before the District Attorney and be [illegible]terrogated by h[illegible]

"I was before [illegible]oran," put in Councilman Tom Anderosn, "and he asked me if I knew about any crime being committed in connection with the loan bill. I think it is a waste of time to appear before him."

Then the committee of five was appointed and they went into Moran's office.

EARLY AT COURTHOUSE.

The councilmen who have not been interviewed by the District Attorney and who were served with summonses earlier in the week began to gather about the courthouse to-day. It was the plan of the District Attorney to have a talk with them before they were called before the Grand Jury.

The passage of the gigantic loan bill was only accomplished by the use of the party lash, and, according to the stories that have come out and impelled the Grand Jury to take the matter up, by the use of party cash. Lobbyists, in the form of political leaders, were on hand and shouted their orders even from the floor of the council chamber.

The administration, when the most favorable vote, previous to the passage of the order, was taken, had forty-nine votes. They needed one more. This was finally secured from Councilman W. S. Bramhall.

STOOD OUT AGAINST BILL.

Two of the men who are alleged to have told about having been offered all sorts of inducements to vote for the bill, but who refused to do so and voted against it, are Councilman Harding and Councilman McCabe. The former is a Republican. The latter is the only Democrat who voted against the [illegible] administration measure.

UNKNOWN OCEAN LINER ON ROCKLAND ROCKS

ROCKLAND, Me., Aug. 9.—An unknown steamship is ashore on Malcolm Ledges, between Seal Island and Wooden Ball, about twenty miles from Rockland. She was first sighted this morning by the keeper of Herring Neck Light, at the entrance of Vinal Haven Harbor. [illegible] bow was high out of the water and smoke was issuing from the funnel.

She appears to be a black tramp steamer. The tug Somers Smith has gone out to render assistance.

The steamer has two masts and a smokestack amidships. The smoke was pouring from her funnel at 9 a. m., and it looked as if everything was being made ready to make a desperate attempt to float on the incoming tide, which will be high at 11:15 a. m.

"The accident must have happened after 6 a. m., as fishermen arriving at Vinal Haven before that hour with early fares saw no sign of her. The identity of the craft and how she happened to be in this neighborhood is a mystery.

ELOPING PAIR RUSH TO JOIN HONEYMOONERS

North Shore Smart Set Stirred by Romance as Sequel to Wedding.

FLED TO "GRETNA GREEN"

Frank A. Douglass, a Yale College man, of Los Angeles, Cal., and his bride, formerly Miss Alcyone Young Ross, of Beverly and Ashburnham, who attended the Woodbury-Gifford nuptials in Beverly Wednesday night, and who eloped to Providence the next day and were married, are thought to-day to be hastening to Maine to join the Woodbury-Gifford bridal couple.

This gives the romantic situation of an eloping bridal couple following the honeymoon path of a bridal couple, whose nuptials were celebrated with all the formality that the second couple evaded.

The situation is made even more interesting by a report from Providence to-day that the elopement wedding was nearly a double one, as a third couple, attending the elopers, had planned a marriage also, but were prevented by the youth of the prospective bride.

Fled After Nuptials.

This conjunction of church wedding, Gretna wedding and near wedding is causing much eager discussion in the North Shore set to-day, with the elopement of Mr. Douglass and Miss Ross as the central theme.

Matters are considered as dating from Wednesday night, when Miss Eva Gifford of Salem was wedded at Beverly to Byron W. Woodbury of North Beverly.

One of the ushers was Frank A. Douglass, who is in the East attending Sheffield Scientific School at Yale, and who has been spending the vacation season with Miss Alcyone Young Ross and her mother, Mrs. Lena C. Ross. He had been at the Ross Summer home in Ashburnham, and came to Beverly with them. It has been understood that Mr. Douglass and Miss Ross were to be wed sometime, but no engagement had been announced.

"Jollied" by Friends.

Miss Ross was at the Woodbury-Gifford wedding. There it was noticed that she and Mr. Douglass were much in each other's company. Some of the girls even "jollied" Miss Ross to the extent of calling her "Mrs. Douglass," an insinuation which Miss Ross met with proper and deceiving scorn.

It is also said that at this very wedding Miss Ross, Mr. Douglass and the Woodbury-Gifford bridal couple "fixed it up" so that the two former were to elope and join the first bridal couple.

Be that as it may, Mr. Douglass and Miss Ross slipped away to Providence yesterday afternoon. They went to Providence City Hall, where Mr. Douglass secured the necessary license. At this point the third couple figures in the nuptial scenario.

Third Couple in Case.

With Mr. Douglass and Miss Ross were W. Clare Powers and Alan C. Blanding of Providence. In the carriage, waiting for the quartette, was a second young woman, identity unknown. It is reported that Mr. Powers also sought a marriage license, presumably for himself and fair unknown in the carriage. However, it seems the lady in the case was too young to be wedded without parental consent. But the facts in this case are still to be confirmed.

At any rate, Mr. Douglass and Miss Ross procured their license. Then the party was driven to the home of the Rev. Henry Bassett, rector of Grace Church, Providence, who married Mr. Douglass and Miss Ross.

"SURF BABY" WILL SURVIVE.

TOBIN DEFEATS SHEA, HEADS THE TEAMSTERS

FRIENDS OF FORMER PRESIDENT CHARGE DELEGATES WITH BOLTING.

Daniel J. Tobin, president of the Boston Team Drivers' District Council, was to-day elected president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters and Helpers at the convention in Paine Memorial Hall, Appleton street, defeating Cornelius P. Shea of Cambridge, candidate for re-election. The vote was 102 for Tobin to 92 for Shea.

Ever since the international convention met here last Monday interest centred in the rivalry between Shea and Tobin, and the friends and adherents of both have been working day and night for their candidates.

The Shea delegates are now charging that some of the Western delegates bolted the Shea slate. Especially are the men from Chicago—eighty-three in all—accused of deserting Shea. The Chicago delegation is the largest from any one city in the convention.

In the vote for the presidency the Boston delegates gave Shea sixteen votes, while Tobin received eight.

The next important contest was for secretary-treasurer. Thomas L. Hughes of Chicago, the present incumbent, was re-elected, defeating Jeremiah McCarthy, also of Chicago, by a vote of 110 to 89.

Hughes was the Tobin slate candidate for this office, and, upon the announcement of this second victory, the Tobin men cheered again and again. Five more votes were cast in the election for this office than for the presidency.

The Shea people elected their candidate for the first vice-presidency. E. J. Mullin of Chicago defeated George F. Golden of that city by 104 to 95.

Disapprove of Shea's Policy.

The defeat of Mr. Shea is taken as showing the sentiment of the Chicago people against the policy which he pursued in the great teamsters' strike there two years ago. As a result of this strike Shea was tried on a charge of conspiracy made against him by the Montgomery-Ward firm. The first trial resulted in disagreement; he was acquitted on the second trial.

Daniel J. Tobin is about thirty-five years of age. He was born in Ireland. His home is in Cambridge. He is the father of six boys. oTbin has been business agent for the Boston Team Drivers' Union, No. 25, for three years. He conducted the recent strike in this city, which has just resulted in a victory for the teamsters.

Mr. Tobin is president of the Team Drivers' District Council of Greater Boston, composed of twenty-two local unions. This is his first term in that position. He has attended all of the international conventions of the brotherhood since the amalgamation of the two international unions, four years ago at Niagara Falls.

7-YEAR-OLD VICTIM NABS 6-FOOT THIEF

Little Willie Marsh, a seven-year-old South End boy, to-day brought about the arrest and conviction of what he terms "the meanest crook I ever heard about."

This is the way he told his story to Judge Wentworth in the Municipal Criminal Court:

"Yer Honor, I ain't got no regular job, but I pick up a nickel now and then doing errands for storekeepers up in the South End. Yesterday afternoon the boss of the Imperial Restaurant on Washington street sent me over to a place on Tremont street to buy a lot of toothpicks. He gave me two quarters to pay for them.

"I was taking a short cut through Castle street when that big fellow over there in the dock came up to me an' said: 'Say, kid, what're ye got in yer hand?' I opened my fist an' showed him the two quarters. 'Lemme see if I can get 'em away from yer,' he said, an' he grabbed the money an' beat it up Castle street and over Shawmut avenue.

"I ran after him an' yelled, but it wasn't any use. He got away. I went back crying and told the feller in the restaurant an' he told Tayes, the cop.

"I went around with Tayes an' another cop last night an' I saw this same feller on Pleasant street. He was drunk then. I guess he went an' got drunk on my half-dol——."

"That will do," said Judge Wentworth. "Are you positive that this is the man?"

"Sure," answered Willie. "I'd know him anywhere. He's the meanest crook I ever heard about. See where he bruised my arm."

The prisoner, who said he was Frank Sullivan of Worcester, measured more than six feet in height and weighed a little over two hundred pounds. He was fined $5 for each count, larceny and drunkenness, and, failing to pay, was committed to the House of Correction.

UNION LEADER PAYS TRIBUTE TO TOBIN.

DANIEL J. TOBIN.

This estimate of the new president of the Te[illegible]rs' Union is written for the BOSTON AMERICAN by a fellow officer of the [illegible]nion:

Daniel J. Tobin is doubtless one of the most retiring and unobtrusive men who ever was chosen as the executive head of a powerful labor organization. At the same time, Mr. Tobin combines with his innate modesty an executive ability and a control over men that frequently surprises those who are misled by his unassuming exterior.

It is acknowledged that Mr. Tobin did not seek this office. When the subject was first broached to him he said: "No, no, I do not want it." And he returned this answer to the reiterated demands of his friends that he let his name be used for the presidency.

At this time (May and June) Mr. Tobin, as president of the Boston Joint Council of Teamsters and business agent of the union as well, was a foremost figure in the local teamsters' strike which was disrupting the teaming business in this city.

All through this strike, which was bitterly fought, Mr. Tobin was most moderate in his acts and his counsels. "Obey the law, keep away from crowds, the welfare of the union is in your keeping," was the constant caution of Tobin to his men.

After the strike was settled the demand for Mr. Tobin to run for the international presidency became so strong that Mr. Tobin could not deny it. He allowed his name to be used as a candidate. Once committed to the cause, he used all legitimate means to win the eletcion. The most he would say during the ante-election period was a simple: "I expect to win."

FIREMEN ON PARADE; FIRE SWEEPS TOWN

ROCHESTER, Pa., Aug. 9.—Fire starting at 1:30 o'clock this morning damaged several businesses to the extent of $6,000. On account of the volunteer firemen, with equipment, being on parade at a firemen's convention there was nothing but an antiquated hose wagon with which to fight the flames.

STEEL KING COREY CLIMBS 17 STORIES

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—William E. Corey did some physical work yesterday. Sixteen of the elevator men in the Empire building went on strike and the president of the United States Steel Corporation had to climb the stairs to the seventeenth floor. It is reported that Mr. Corey perspired freely.

MOTHER PUTS BABE OUT OF ROOM, DIES BY GAS

First depositing her small baby outside the door of her bedroom so that the poisonous gas might not reach it, Mrs. Wilhelmina Minig turned on the gas in her room and when she was found early to-day by her husband in their flat at No. 73 Village street she was dead.

The Minigs lvied on the first floor. The family consisted of George Minig, the husband, the wife and three children. So far as could be learned to-day there was no reason for the young wife's suicide.

Minig got up to-day about 6 o'clock. He went into a front room and for a time dozed in a chair. His wife in the meantime, taking the nine-month-old baby with her, went into a rear bedroom. She said her head hurt her, and it was quieter there.

Then came the tiny voice of the child in a wail of warning. It roused the father and he walked back to see what was the matter. The baby was on the floor outside the door of the room into which its mother had gone.

The door was not locked. Minig entered and found the room filled with gas. The jet was turned on in full. Mrs. Minig lay on the bed motionless.

Minig rushed for a doctor and found Dr. Poore. He hurried to the room.

"She is dead," he said. "She has been killed by the escaping gas."

The husband, who does not talk English, told the facts as related here in German. He was crushed with the shock of the sudden burden of grief that had fallen upon him.

"She complained that her head hurt—that is all the reason I know for her doing any such thing. She was a good woman—she was kind to me and the children. Oh, Wilhelmina—Wilhelmina!"

On the slip at police headquarters they have written, "Supposed suicide."

MOTHER OF 'SURF BABY' IS HELD WITHOUT BAIL

IDA BERCY CONFESSES TO JUDGE SHE ABANDONED CHILD ON NAHANT BEACH.

Weeping as though her heart would break, Ida Bercy, twenty-one years of age, a pretty brunette, who has been residing at Nahant, to-day confessed to Judge J. D. Wilson of the Nahant District Court that she was the mother of the baby boy found yesterday morning among the rocks on the shore off Willow road, Nahant. A plea of not guilty on the charge of attempting to kill the baby was entered for her by the judge, and she was held for the grand jury of Essex County without bail. The grand jury meets in Lawrence on the second Monday in September.

After Chief of Police Larkin, Policemen Healey and Kennedy and Mr. and Mrs. Frank D. Milliner of Lynn had testified the judge asked Ida Bercy:

"Is the child yours?"

"Yes," murmured the young mother, her voice shaken by great sobs.

"Why did you leave the child on the beach?" asked the Court.

"I Couldn't Support It."

Bravely trying to stifle her sobs, the young woman said:

"I had to do something and I could not support it, so I brought it to the shore. I did not think the child would drown."

"I accept a plea of not guilty," said the Judge, trying himself to hide his emotions. "I hold you without bail for the grand jury."

She was arrested by Policemen Healey and Kennedy of the Nahant police department on a charge of attempting to murder the three-months-old baby. At first she denied the charge, but when put through the third degree broke down and confessed that it was her baby.

She said that she had abandoned her child because it was starving and she was not able to support it. She was arrested through the description given the police by Frank D. Milliner, colored, of No. 16 Oxford street, Lynn, with whom she had left the baby for board last July 12. Yesterday, being unable to pay for the baby's board, the mother came for her child.

Couldn't Pay Its Board.

"The reason that I left my baby on the rocks was because it was starving. I could not support it myself," she said to Patrolman Healey.

On July 12 Ida Bercy met Mrs. Milliner on the street in Lynn. According to the latter's husband's story to the police today she asked the woman if she could take a young baby to board. Terms were arranged and the little one found a temporary home with the Milliners.

The young woman was not prompt in pay, in fact the baby's board bill ran up to $4.50. Last Wednesday she went to Lynn for the child, it is told the police, and got it. She promised the Milliners to bring back the money she owed them, but she did not do so.

Instead, she came to Nahant on the Lynn boat, arriving there about 8 or 9 o'clock. It is alleged that she was seen wandering on the beach with the child, where she eventually left it.

Cradled by Rocks.

In her cell to-day the young mother has given herself over to uncontrollable grief. She has said that the child's father is a Newfoundland man. She says the baby was born in June last.

The baby was found yesterday morning among some rocks on the shore at the foot of the Willow road by E. E. Bates, a guest at the Tri-Mountain House, who was walking on the beach at the time.

Mr. Bates heard the plaintive wail of an infant and hunted among the rocks until he found the little one swathed in its white clothing. He picked the child up and notified Chief of Police Larkin of the Nahant police.

The tender-hearted chief ran with the child a mile to his own home, where he at once turned the baby over to his wife, and she secured a nurse to attend the little waif.

Tide Threatened Life.

Physicians were summoned, as every shred of clothing worn by the infant had been soaked by the sea. The little one was chilled through, and it was a work of some anxious hours before it was fully revived and made comfortable.

Then the investigation to ascertain its parentage and how it came to have been discarded to the mercy of the sea was begun. Had the tide not been starting out at the time the baby was forsaken, it would have been drowned. As it was Mr. Bates discovered it before the incoming tide, hours later, threatened its life.

While Mrs. Larkin worked over the baby, the men summoned Dr. F. C. Winslow, who aided in the efforts to preserve the life of the child of the sea.

Sleeps Peacefully.

Late, when the little one was peacefully sleeping in the cradle at the Larkin home, an examination was made of its clothing.

Made of the cheapest material and poorly sewed with coarse black thread, were the garments found on the waif. The little feet were encased in pink and white knit socks, badly soiled. On its body was a tiny flannel shirt, very dirty, and a flannel band, also much worn and dirty. The outer dress was a cheap, ready made affair, with no marks upon it.

All over the little body of the child were the marks of bruises where, rolled about by the waves in its rocky cradle, the skin had been marred and broken by contact with the sharp projections, but none of the wounds was serious.

Dr. Winslow states that the boy has an unusually strong constitution to enable him to withstand the exposure of a night on the beach among the rocks, and he expects his vitality to enable him to live.

BIG GAME AT SOUTH END

The West End House and the North End Union will play at the National League grounds this afternoon for the nineteen-twenty-year-old championship of the State. Both teams have been playing fast ball, which will make the contest for supremacy all the more interesting. Over 2,000 tickets have been sold for the game. Andy Hyland, the old Harvard pitcher, and Carl Dreyfuss will umpire.

The teams will hold a banquet on Sunday night at the Revere House, at which Nathan S. Sodekson will be toastmaster.

STABS SWEETHEART; BEATEN BY ANGRY MOB

MOTHER CRAZED BY FEARS FOR LIFE OF STOLEN BABE IN GOTHAM CRIME WAVE.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—Four hundred infuriated men, in the belief that another young girl had been attacked by a fiend, pounced upon a youthful foreigner in East Twenty-seventh street today, beat him unmercifully and in all probability would have trounced him to death were it not for the arrival of reserves from the sub-station at Twenty-seventh street and Fifth avenue.

The victim is Angelo Titro, twenty-two years old, of No. 304 East One Hundred and Thirteenth street. When members of the mob heard he had disfigured the face of an old sweetheart because she had refused to marry him, there were regrets that he did not suffer death at their hands.

Titro attacked Maria Daudeni of No. 324 East Thirty-fourth street while she was on her way to work. He drew a stiletto, after she had refused his offer of marriage and slashed her face on the right side from the ear to the mouth, horribly disfiguring her.

Search for the kidnappers of five-year-old Dominica Valarde, of No. 142 Cherry street, and for the child, continues unavailingly. The demand of the blackmailers for a ransom of $300, with the suggestion that her life depends upon payment, has spurred the police to renewed effort, in order that she may not be put to death.

To stimulate the work of running down the criminals, the Evening Journal has offered a reward of $1,000 and to this is added $500 by "Big Tom" Foley, leader of the Second Assembly District, $500 by Michael A. Rofrano, ex-Deputy Tenement House Commissioner and $500 by Rocco Valardo, father of the girl, making a total of $2,500.

Mrs. Valarde, the mother, is nearly insane, and her husband has all but collapsed. Captain Bowes, of the Madison Street Police Station, and a score of detectives are working on the case. Cellars, barrels and boxes have been examined, but there is no actual trace of the child or her abductors.

It is reported that a woman had been seen on the Third avenue elevated train about the time the girl was kidnapped, with a child in her arms. It was said that passengers noticed that the child was under the influence of some drug. The woman is said to have left the train at the Bridge terminal. Detectives were unable to locate the woman either in Manhattan or Brooklyn.

BUNCOED OUT OF $425 UNDER GILDED DOME

Man Who "Bought" Parade Stands on Common Trying to Find Swindlers.

Leonard Fouel of No. 40 Fleet street is vengefully searching the North End to-day for the two slick men who sold to him for $425 cash the Old Home Week parade stands in Boston Common which had previously been sold by the Old Home Week municipal committee to a previous bidder.

As the transaction was discussed in the shadow of City Hall, and was concluded in the State House itself, it is considered a wonder that the two bunco men didn't give the unsuspecting Fouel a title to those two structures for extra measure. Fouel was so truly in earnest during the whole transaction that Building Commissioner John A. Rooney had some difficulty later in convincing him that he didn't own the Common stands. As a precaution it was decided to detail a policeman at the stands during the night to prevent the distracted Fouel from trying to tear them down and carry them away.

Men Looking for Purchasers.

Fouel recently bought a lot of land in Lee and planned to build a house. Yesterday he dropped into a Fleet street saloon. There he stood alongside of two men who were talking of the Old Home Week stands and how they wished to find a purchaser for them.

"Ah, agents for the city," thought Fouel. He had seen the stands and immediately figured it was a fine chance to get cheap lumber for his house-to-be.

Fouel "braced" the two strangers and the upshot was that they agreed to sell him the stands for $425. The tro walked to City Hall courtyard to discuss the transaction. Then, with most artistic nerve, the two strangers said to Fouel:

"All right, we'll let them go for $425, for the city must get rid of them. The public is complaining about the Common space being taken up by them. Come up to the State House and we'll close the transaction."

Then the smooth pair took Fouel to the State House, and using some of the Commonwealth's own note paper at one of the public writing desks, made out a legal-looking receipt. Fouel produced his $425, which was carefully counted—"Just as a business precaution, you know, my dear Mr. Fouel," explained the pair. Fouel was highly impressed with the thorough business nature of the entire transaction.

Sent for Building Permit.

Giving him the receipt the couple said: "You go to the Building Commissioner's office and get your permit to tear down the tsands. And don't lose any time, for we're a bit late about this sale as it is. Now we must turn in this money to the city's account at the bank. Goodby, goodby."

By this time the couple was out a side door and away, while Fouel proudly bore his receipt to the Building Commissioner. In about three minutes, when Fouel had it drilled int ohis heal that he had been "stung" there was an awful howl. But the Building Commissioner couldn't do anything. Fouel took his yelp to Captain Peabody of Joy street station, who started a search for the selling agents.

"REDBERRIES" FEASTING ON MAINE COAST

Mayor Fitzgerald and Advance Guard Greet Throng of Officeholders

Special to the Boston American.

OLD ORCHARD, Me., Aug. 9.—The Redberry Club of Boston, the largest organization of municipal officeholders in the United States, is here to-day for its annual outing and clambake at Pine Point. The anti-pass law passed by the last session of Congress was responsible for an unusually large number coming down on the Portland boat last night. The new law does not apply to coastwise steamship lines.

Mayor Fitzgerald and the advance guard which came down by boat met the other arrivals at the station here. The Cumberland County string band was in hand to escort the party to the Point, the trip being made on the "dinky" cars. City Messenger "Ned" Leary carrying his mace, acted as drum-major.

Only Four Speeches by Mayor.

Mayor Fitzgerald made but four speeches before the party started for Pine Point, one upon the arrival of the advance guard from Portland, another to the same party pending the arrival of the train, the third a speech of welcome to the train arrivals and the fourth upon the start to Pine Point. He was cheered as the greatest Mayor that Boston has ever had and seemed greatly pleased.

Pending the arrival of the Boston train the Mayor and the Redberries who came on the boat swapped reminiscences of the days before the big Redberry was only a little one and all had to forage for clams, lobsters and other necessaries for the bake, instead of having them bountifully provided by the Mayor.

Profiting by his experience of last year, when over 200 sat down to a bake provided for seventy-five, the Mayor has an ample supply of eatables and other things that Redberries like on hand to-day.

"Refreshments" Are Unpacked.

Superintendent of Supplies Michael J. Mitchell superintended the unloading from the train of several large packages of refreshments which he had thoughtfully brought down from Boston, the Sturgis law making it difficult to obtain everything needed for the bake in this State.

The Mayor led in the singing of the municipal song, "Sweet Adeline," before the departure for Pine Point. Superintendent of Streets James H. Doyle was missing from the party this year, having waited in Boston to hear the outcome of the Grand Jury bribery investigation.

Five Children Suffered With Fearful Skin Troubles—One Little Girl's Eyesight Was Endangered—A Grateful Woman Writes of

FIVE PERFECT CURES BY CUTICURA REMEDIES

"Cuticura Remedies saved my two children. My little girl's face was so covered with sores that she could not see and I thought at one time that her eyesight was gone for good. After two doctors had failed to do her any good a friend asked me to try the Cuticura Remedies. I did so and in two or three days we could see a great change and in four weeks she was well and her face was smooth and had cured nicely. She had been sore for three months so that she could not rest night or day. My little boy was sore all over. His head was a solid scab. First we tried a doctor who did him no good, but the first time I bathed my son's head with Cuticura Soap and put Cuticura Ointment on it he rested better at night and the next morning his head was much better. In five weeks he was well. I cannot say enough for the Cuticura Remedies for if I had not used them my baby would have died. My little sister, Nora S——, had a terribly sore face. I told my mother of the Cuticura Remedies. She used them and the child's face soon got well after the best doctors had failed. Pearl B—— used Cuticura Soap, Ointment, and Pills for sores on her body and face, and little Pinkey S—— had a sore head. Her mother used Cuticura Soap and Ointment on it and she was soon well. Mrs. Mary Hicks, Sutherland, Dinwiddie Co., Va., Apr. 15, 1907."

ECZEMA ON FACE

Cured by the Cuticura Remedies

"I had eczema in very bad form all over my face for the past four months. Physicians in several towns prescribed for it without giving me any results, but four weeks ago I commenced using the Cuticura Remedies, consisting of one cake of Cuticura Soap, one bottle of Cuticura Resolvent, and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment and to-day I am perfectly well. DAY OF STANDARD POWER IS PASSED, SAYS IDA TARBELL

ENORMOUS PENALTIES FACED IN FRESH PROSECUTIONS OF GREAT MONOPOLY.

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—The great Oil Trust, headed in fact by John D. Rockefeller, the richest man on earth, now faces aggregate fines of $114,760,000. Eminent lawyers who have studied the legal aspects of the pending cases against the Standard Oil Company believe it to be in danger of destruction as the result of these heavy fines, following vigorous prosecutions by the Federal authorities, now being pushed in half a dozen States.

There are fifteen indictments, carrying over 6,000 counts pending in five judicial districts. If fines for rebating follow, as levied by Judge Landis, the Oil Trust will face the stupendous penalty of $114,760,000, more than its capital stock.

The Department of Justice at Washington is jubilant at its success, and all the cases against the Standard Oil Company will be insistently pushed.

It is now believed in well-informed legal and financial circles that the Oil Trust is in danger of forced dissolution.

"Oil Trust's Day Is Over."

"The day of the Standard Oil Company in its old form is over. It must either conform now to justice and fair dealing or it is doomed. I don't mean that its day is over this year or will be over next year, but it is as surely ended as right is right."

Miss Ida M. Tarbell, in an interview, thus expressed herself at the assessment of the $29,000,000 fine on the Oil Trust by Judge Landis and other imminent fines.

"After thirty-five years of such practices as the Standard Oil Company has been found guilty of," said Miss Tarbell, "it is entirely just that, after conviction, the maximum punishment should be imposed. I am only sorry that the punishment cannot be something more than a fine.

Trying to Get Fair Play.

"I do not believe that there is a single year in the whole thirty-five in which some State or the United States has not had some suit on against the trust, and in the last fifteen years a dozen States have been trying to pass laws to force it to decency and fairness.

"The difficulty with the men in the Standard Oil Company seems to be that they have no sense that the public has any part in the conduct of corporations. They utterly lack the collective sense, it is individualism gone mad—reduced to an absurdity.

"It seems never to occur to them that this is something the public can see through and that nobody would sympathize with them when they complain, even if they were not guilty.

OIL TRUST INSOLENCE.

"The public for thirty-five years has been trying to make the Standard Oil Company play fair. It has given the trust repeated warnings in the way of public uprisings—the passage of laws and adverse decisions. But every time the trust has snapped its fingers and gone on in the same old way.

"It is a sort of insolence which a people would be very supine to tolerate indefinitely. It is being demonstrated clearly that the American people do not propose to endure it any longer. The Standard Oil men are not only insolent, they are stupid as well, and show that they entirely misunderstand the power of public opinion and the genuineness of the public sense of fair play.

"They have had every chance to readjust their business and conduct it as gentlemen should, and all they have done, after a public exposure, is to readjust it so that they could carry on their same old practices in a new way.

ROCKEFELLER DEFIANT.

"Mr. Rockefeller never has taken any public verdict against himself very seriously. His comment on Judge Landis's decision—that the judge would be dead a good many years before the fine was paid—is characteristic of him. He always shows the same confidence that he will be able to prove himself stronger than the Government. I hope the fine will be collected, but I think, with Mr. Rockefeller, that it will be some time before it will be paid. If it is collected, the public will pay it—the public always pays under present conditions.

"Mr. Rockefeller is a fanatic. His strength lies in his power to concentrate everything on one result and work to it without the least deviation. He has been doing that from the first, but he never has grown morally or socially. They had such men in the middle ages, but there are not many of them nowadays."

GIANT OIL TRUST NOW FACING FINES, $114,760,000 IN ALL

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 9.—Indictments against the Standard Oil Company and its subsidiary corporations for practising discrimination and accepting and receiving rebates from common carriers have been found as follows:

Western District of New York:

Against Standard Oil Company, one indictment, charging practice of discrimination, 123 counts returned, August 10, 1906; against Vacuum Oil Company, practicing discrimination, 23 counts, returned August 10, 1906; against Standard Oil Company, accepting concessions from publishing rate on oil, 23 counts, returned, August 24, 1906.

Western District of Louisiana:

Against Waters-Pierce Oil Company, for accepting rebates, returned January 28, 1907, thirty-two counts.

Eastern District of Missouri:

Against Waters-Pierce Oil Company, one indictmeent charging acceptance of rebates, seventy-six counts, returned November 28, 1906.

Northern District of Illinois:

Against Standard Oil Company of Indiana, ten indictments, 6,390 counts, charging acceptance of rebates, returned in August, 1906.

One fine of $29,240,000.

Trial of the Standard Oil on indictment charging acceptance of rebates from the Chicago & Alton Railway resulted in a verdict of guilty and imposition of a fine of $29,240,000 by Judge Landis. The verdict of guilty was as to 1,462 counts. There were 1,562 counts, but 100 of them were either quashed or the jury was not able to return a verdict of guilty.

Indictments against railroads for giving rebates or otherwise discriminating in favor of the Standard:

Western district of New York—New York Central & Hudson River Railroad, one indictment, charging giving of rebates and concessions, returned, August 10, 1906; company found guilty and fined $15,000. Pennsylvania Railroad, one indictment, charging discrimination and giving of rebates, twenty-four counts, returned, August 10, 1906.

Indictments against Standard, 16.

Counts in pending indictments, 5,738.

Fines levied, $114, 760,000.

Civil action pending, Eastern District of Missouri, bill in equity asking for an injunction and dissolution of the trust, filed November 15, 1906.

At this minute, with a fine of $29,240,000 hanging over its coffers, the Standard Oil Company, either under that name or under the name of one or another of the dozens of companies owned by it, is under indictment in five federal districts—namely, Western New York, Western District of New York, Western District of Louisiana, Eastern District of Missouri Western District of Tennessee, and Nothern District of Illinois. There are only fifteen indictments, but inasmuch as each court covers a separate offence, the trust is liable under the counts thus pending to fines amounting to $114,760,000, which is more than the capital stock of the parent corporation.

"PUT PUPILS IN SLUMS NEAR CITY PARKS"

—PRESIDENT ELIOT

Head of Harvard College Urges Better Conditions for Little Ones.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—Public schools for slum children should be on the edge of city parks and the city should furnish free transportation to the scholars to and from school and supervise their play and study periods. This is what President Charles W. Eliot of Harvard University advocates in a signed article he has written for Dr. Lyman Abbott's Outlook, which will be printed to-morrow. After explaining the plan, President Eliot says:

"There can be no doubt that this arrangement would be highly advantageous to the children who should be thus brought out from the slums five days in the week and kept under supervision nine or ten ours a day. They would have the adjoining park to play in, and each school use could be provided with a large yard plenty of light and air. About 40,000 square feet is the least ble area for a schoolhouse to accomte 1,000 children. Such an area t easily cost in Boston, for example, ,000, whereas the same area opposite of the large Boston or Metropolitan ks might be procured for $50,000."

IRON MOULDERS DECIDE UPON HIGHER DUES

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 9.—Hereafter members of the Iron Moulders' Union will pay 40 cents a week dues. This has been decided at the convention of the moulders which has been held here for several days. The weekly dues have already been 25 cents with a special assessment of 50 cents at the end of every quarter. Under the new conditions this special assessment will be dispensed with.

The convention, which on Wednesday raised the salaries of its various officers, reconsidered its action yesterday, after President Valentine had protested against the increase, and voted to pay the officers the sums they have been receiving for, at least, another year.

At to-day's session resolutions against child labor will be adopted.

It is expected that the present board of officers will be re-elected to-day, and that the convention will adjourn to-morrow.

DRIVE PEOPLE FROM HOMES IN DRAPER ROW

Employes Quitting Old Firm for New Concern Get Notice to Move.

SENSATION IN HOPEDALE

HOPEDALE, Aug. 9.—So bitter has the feeling become between General William F. Draper, former United States ambassador to Italy, and the Draper Manufacturing Company, since the row which resulted in the general's retirement from the presidency of the Draper company and the organization of the C. F. Roper & Co., of which he is to be the backer and which is to compete with the Draper company, that former employes of the Draper company who have entered the employ of the Roper concern have been ordered out of the Draper houses.

Everett S. Wood of No. 35 Dutcher street, a graduate of the Worcester Polytechnic Institute, who recently resigned from the Draper Company's employ to go with General Draper in the new company, has been told that the moment he leaves the Draper Company he must move from the Draper Company's tenement which he has occupied for years.

The General Is Aroused.

"It is the rule of the company that when a man leaves its employ he cannot live in our houses," President J. B. Bancroft of the Draper Company told him when he protested.

"But there are many ex-employes living in your houses," said Mr. Wood.

"No matter," was the reply of President Bancroft. "You must move when you leave us."

Then Mr. Wood went to General Draper and told him his story.

General Draper was angry. His eyes blazed.

"See me in an hour or two," he told Mr. Wood.

Within three hours General Draper had purchased the H. L. Patrick house, near the one now occupied by Mr. Wood, and as soon as the present occupant, Arthur C. Johnson, principal of the Hopedale High School, can make arrangements for another home Mr. Wood and his family will move into the Patrick house.

Fierce Business Battle.

General Draper has made arrangement with President Bancroft of the Draper Company by which Mr. Wood will be permitted to remain in the Draper house he now occupies until the other can be made ready for him.

"Had I not resigned to work for General Draper I would have been allowed to stay in the house in which I have been for years," Mr. Wood said to-day.

The ill feeling between the Drapers is growing daily and it has become the subject of gossip on the street corners, in stores and in the homes.

The ultimatum delivered to Mr. Wood by President Bancroft has stirred up a hornet's nest, and it is said that many employes of the Draper Company, whose sympathies have been with Lieutenant-Governor Draper and those of the family who remain in the company, have now declared that they will leave the Draper Company and enter the employ of the General's new concern if he will take them.

Persons familiar with the situation declare that there will be a hundred or more resignations from the Draper company's employ within the next few weeks.

Most of the men in the experimental department, which for years has been under the supervision of General Draper, and of his representatives when he was this country's ambassador in Italy, it is expected will connect themselves with his new concern as soon as he is ready to give them employment.

There is a story here that the Draper company is planning for a vigorous fight against the General's new company and that the former concern has already purchased thirteen acres of land which adjoins that of Roper & Co.

Will End Monopoly.

The idea, it is declared, is to make it impossible for the General to expand his new plant without moving it from the site on which it is now located.

Hopedale meanwhile is taking considerable pleasure out of the fact that the Drapers are at war, because they believe that it means the end of the monopoly by the Draper company and eventually the establishment of other industries.

General Draper will not discuss the plans of his new company.

"When our buildings are completed and the plant installed I will have something to say," he told a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter to-day.

ASKS FOR FEDERAL AUTHORITY TO SLAY

RAVENNA, O., Aug. 9.—The Government authorities are investigating a case in which a Portage county man is said to have asked permission to commit murder by Federal authority. The United States ordnance department at Springfield, Mass., a few weeks ago received a letter from W. B. Boosinger, claiming Brimfield, this county, as his home. He asked that authority be wired him to kill an enemy in his township.

DOUBLE TRACKS READY FOR TRAFFIC

BANGOR, Aug. 8.—A large crew is employed in laying the second track of the Northern Maine Seaport branch of the Bangor & Aroostook Railroad between Northern Maine Junction and South Legrange, a distance of about 30 miles. The rails have been laid for about half the distance, and grading is completed over the entire distance. Before the beginning of the heavy Fall traffic the Seaport will have a double track from Northern Maine Junction to West Sebois.

KERMIT ROOSEVELT TO JOIN CAVALRYMEN

FORT LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Aug. 9.—A squadron of 250 men of the Thirteenth Cavalry, U. S. A., has left here on a march to Fort Sheridan, Ill. The squadron will pass through Iowa and Illinois, stopping a while at the Rock Island Arsenal.

Kermit Roosevelt, son of President Roosevelt, may join the soldiers there. Among those who joined here are Captain Fitzhugh Lee and Lieutenant Philip Sheridan.

MOUNTAIN OF NICKEL FOUND UP IN MAINE

BANGOR, Aug. 9.—What is said to be the largest deposit of nickel ore in the United States has been discovered at North Rumford, Oxford county, on what is known as Nickel Mountain. The ore is in the form of fine particles of sulphide of nickel evenly disseminated throughout the entire body. The ore is not hard, and, it is stated, can be mined and concentrated at less than the usual expense. The ore body shows across the mountain for the distance of 2,000 feet, and pits that have been sunk over that area have in every instance revealed the nickel-bearing ore.

DO YOU HAVE FREE 'PHONE? SIX SAY "NO"

"Sam" Powers, However, Has Said That Seven Aldermen Enjoyed This Graft.

SIX TO BE HEARD FROM

On August 1, speaking for the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company, Attorney Samuel L. Powers, before the Highways Commission, declared when Vice-President J. N. Keller was asked if free telephones were furnished the Aldermen of Boston:

"I want right here to make an admission, if we may call it such, on the part of the company. This company, since its organization, has openly furnished free telephone service to the Aldermen of Boston. Not all of the Aldermen have used the privilege, but seven of them do. The clerk of committees usually furnishes a list. The custom is one that came to us from the old Telephone Dispatch Company and it is proper that this commission should know of it."

The BOSTON AMERICAN has called up twelve of the thirteen Aldermen. Alderman Daniel L. Flanagan has no telephone.

Six Answer "No."

Six of these Aldermen have answered "No" when asked "Is this 'phone free?"

These Aldermen, their telephone numbers, and the answers which they made are as follows:

FRANCIS R. BANGS, Main 0411, Back Bay 863—"My telephone is not free."

TILTON S. BELL, Dorchester 1359—"I pay for my telephone."

WILLIAM BERWIN, Main 2812—"I have only one telephone and I have had that for the last six or seven years; in fact, before I ever became a member of the city government. The payment for my telephone service has always been out of my own pocket."

LOUIS M. CLARK, Main 2140—"Certainly I pay for my telephone. Absolutely yes."

JAMES M. CURLEY, Roxbury 2140; Roxbury 324—"I pay for my telephone service just the same as any other subscriber of the company. The treasurer of the Tammany Club receives a monthly bill for the telephone installed in the headquarters, and I presume he pays it every month."

CHARLES M. DRAPER, Roxbury 886-7, Main 7190—"I pay for both my telephones and always have done so."

Six to Hear From.

The answers of these six Aldermen have not yet been recorded:

JOHN E. BALDWIN, South Boston 363.

GEORGE H. BATTIS, Richmond 1972-3, East Boston 17.

FRED A. FINIGAN.

MICHAEL J. LEARY, East Boston 659-3.

DANIEL A. WHELTON, Haymarket 1443.

WILLIAM H. WOODS, Brighton 363-2, Brighton 18.

PAY HONOR TO MARTYR PRIEST IN DEDICATION

BANGOR, Aug. 9.—The new Catholic church at Madison Village, Me., will be dedicated under the title of St. Sebastian by the Right Rev. Louis Sebastian Walsh, D. D., Bishop of Portland, on Thursday morning, Aug. 22, at 8 o'clock. On the same day at 10:30 o'clock, a solemn mass will be celebrated at the grave of the martyred priest, Sebastian Rasle, S. J., at Indian Old Point, in Madison.

On August 23, 1724, the Old Point Madison was destroyed, and Father Rasle, together with many of his Catholic Indians, massacred. A monument commemorative of this tragic event was placed over the grave of Father Rasle on August 23, 1833, by the Right Rev. Benedict Joseph Fenwick, Bishop of Boston. As it has been found necessary to reconstruct this monument, the one recently completed will be dedicated by Bishop Walsh, and a panegyric appropriate to the occasion will be delivered by the Rev. Thomas J. Campbell, S. J., of the faculty of Fordham University, N. Y.

TEACHER KILLS SELF BY POISON

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 9.—Preparations are being made to-day for the burial of Miss Ellen Dodge, for several years first assistant at the Hope Street High School, who committed suicide last night by taking prussic acid at the boarding house No. 127 Angell street. Nervousness, resulting from overwork, is thought to have been the cause of the deed.

Miss Dodge was found lying upon her bed fully dressed and in great agony. Dr. Frank T. Fulton of Angell street was called, and arrived a few minutes before the unfortunate woman died. Word was at once sent to Medical Examiner Jay Perkins, who viewed the body and pronounced death due to suicide by drinking prussic acid. He gave permission for burial.

You are sure to find the right pattern | You are certain to find the right size
As to the PRICES, investigate, make comparisons and buy where your judgment dictates

We expect to lose money in our clothing department during the next four or five weeks, but we expect to make so many new friends and customers that we will be more than recompensed for this tremendous sacrifice. We cannot sell $22, $25 and $30 suits for $14.50 and make any money, but practically every suit that goes out of this department will make a regular customer.

Many men make a practice of buying their Fall and Winter suits at this time of the year when they can do so at 1-3 to 1-2 less than Fall prices. We are doing the biggest business among these men because our suits are just the proper weight to wear on moderate Summer days without vests and to wear during the Fall and Winter with vests. They are mostly three-piece suits. We have very few two-piece suits in stock.

It is remarkable the number of men who have visited our clothing department during the past 2 or 3 weeks since the clothing sales have been going on around town and complain that they have gone from one store to another but could not find the right sizes or patterns to suit. Stocks here are complete, with a full range of sizes and correct patterns.

The four stores of the Henry Siegel organization sell more clothing than any other concern in America, consequently we have standing orders with some of the best clothing manufacturers in America, who keep renewing our supply as rapidly as we sell it out, and although the primary purpose of the August markdown sale is to reduce stock, still we make it a point to have our stock complete with all sizes and patterns.

Have You Tried Rainbow Colors as a Cure for Nerves?

HERE is the new cure—called the tranquility. It is effected by colors.

Many of the leading hospitals and physicians are using the colors of the rainbow to check nervous and mental ailments. The treatment has been found to be effective. It is considered by scientists to be one of nature's marvels.

It was found that this remarkable method of cure is used largely in the treatment of women. They are sensitive, and colors mean something to them.

Some colors soothe, while others jar. These matters have been studied scientifically, until now, according to Dr. Blake Baldwin of Chicago, the color cure has been introduced into private homes.

Here Are Remedies

DID you ever look at the rainbow or some other multi-colored thing and try to cure yourself of the blues or a headache? You may think it is not possible, but it is declared to be by those who should know. Here is what some of the colors will do:

Green, soft and smooth—quiet the unstrung nerves and add a cheerful effect.

Yellow, quiet and subdued—liven up a person suffering from despondency.

Black, harsh and unyielding—throw a patient into hysterics.

Pink, no matter how soft—cause an excitable or nervous person to become steadily worse.

Red, loud and striking—a great color to cheer, but it is usually too violent for use in case of nervous diseases.

Blue, soft and pretty—a great quieter for the nerves.

The colors which are used the most in Chicago's color cures are green and yellow.

Work Wonders

DR. BALDWIN said:

"The light or color treatment is a wonderful thing, as has been demonstrated. We find that a patient should first be carefully studied and the proper color selected.

"The patient then should be placed in a room absolutely void of any decorations, such as colored wall paper, pictures and so forth, because he or she involuntarily begins counting and figuring on anything which breaks the even wall.

"The green should be used in a north light and to quiet a person. Yellow should be used in a south light, to add cheerfulness and enlivened spirit to the nervous, depressed person."

Expert Advice on Health and Beauty

THE woman who is determined to be beautiful cannot hope to lead a self-indulgent life. She need not exemplify perpetual motion, but neither can she be slothful. Sleeping too much, eating too much, walking too little—these are not conducive to the retaining of youthful suppleness and the clear eyes and complexion of childhood.

A celebrated actress, whose exquisite grace and movement and girlish figure were still hers when children called her grandmother, gave as her only recipe the following of the simplest laws of hygiene: "I never eat rich or greasy foods; I never sleep in a closed room; I walk every day; that is all."

Surely any woman may follow these lines and be almost certain of results as pleasing and satisfactory!

Self-indulgence in any way is demoralizing; as a beauty destroyer it is foremost in the havoc wrought.

PAIN IN SHOULDER

DEAR PROFESSOR:

Will you please give a simple but sure remedy for my shoulder. I have a pain in it whenever I am sitting still or when I am asleep, although it does not bother me as I move about. Is it rheumatism and can you tell me what to do for it? ENGLEWOOD.

IT is probably best for you to consult a physician about your shoulder. You might first try the following exercise: Swing the arm around in a circle from front to back, keeping the extended fingers pointing first at some vertical line in the wall, such as a door casing, then on across the ceiling, still keeping some guide line in view, then down the wall behind you and across the floor back to the starting point.

The object of this is to form a complete circle which exercises the shoulder joint and makes it turn in all directions. Swing this many times in that way and then reverse the movement. Massaging the muscles all around the joint with any good soft oil may help you.

SCARS FROM ACNE

DEAR PROFESSOR:

Will you please tell me of some cure for scars left from acne? I have tried many things, but all in vain, and my skin is so tender that I am afraid to use anything else. Please tell me of something I can use before powdering, so they will not be seen, and in the meantime something that will cure them permanently. MRS. S. M.

I WOULD advise you to use nothing but soft oils if your skin is so tender. Hot olive oil may help the scars to grow less prominent, as it is usually good for scars. Bathe them several times a day in this hot olive oil and see if you do not get results. Use any good skin food before you powder the face, wiping it off as much as possible before putting on the powder. This will help to soften the looks of the scars until time, along with the application of the oil, makes them less conspicuous.

Put No Faith in a Man That Loves Only Your Beauty

By Winifred Black

AN English jury has just decided that a man has a right to jilt a girl if he decides that he doesn't like her looks in curl papers, even if he doesn't find out about the curl papers till the very morning of the wedding.

How considerate!

I wonder if the same jury would decide that a girl had the right to break her engagement to marry if she suddenly discovered that she hated the looks of him in a turn-down collar.

Tut, tut! Stuff and nonsense.

That curl paper business was an excellent excuse, gentlemen of the jury, but it was nothing but an excuse after all.

If I were that jilted English girl I'd throw up my hat and dance a cake-walk to think that I got rid of a bad bargain so easily.

A man who is really in love with a woman will love her in a damp bathing suit, with her hair in strings and her usual complexion not among those present, not to mention loving her when she's in curl papers.

Not Worth Much

IF I thought I was going to marry a man who wanted to keep me on dress parade all the time, I'd take a vow of eternal single blessedness this very day.

Why, a man never really does love a woman until he's been with her when she was too seasick to sit up and too tired to care, and too blue to even know what she had on.

The sort of love that depends on make-up isn't worth four letters to spell it with.

I might look awfully pretty in a pink morning gown, with my hair in ringlets—so far, so good—but how about the woman in the flat below me, who looks twice as pretty in a blue get-up?

Will my husband scorn me and fall in love with her just because she looks sweet in blue?

I trow not—not if he really cares a real copper cent for me.

Only the Frosting

BEAUTY is all right, pretty clothes are well enough, and becoming costumes are the finest sort of things to wear, but they are only the frosting on the cake—they're not the real cake at all.

Any man who would fall out of love with a woman because her clothes didn't suit him at any particular time of the day would fall in love with any other woman whose clothes did happen to suit him.

And, for my part, a man like that is perfectly welcome to the whole of the road. I don't want to take up one moment of his attention.

Beauty has caught thousands of men. I never knew it to keep one single man.

A man loves a woman for exactly the same reason or lack of reason that a woman loves a man—because he can't help it—and clothes and curl papers and kimonos have nothing whatever that's real to do with the case.

Congratulations, Mr. Englishman; you got out of a narrow doorway very neatly.

Aren't you glad you happened to think of that curl paper business right in the nick of time?

"SUPPER!" Mr. Hennibul answered, promptly.

"Come on, then," Lord Arranmore assented. "One of those little tables in the far room, eh?"

"Yes," continued Arranmore, as they were seated at the table, "I am going to take my seat in the House of Lords next week."

"I am delighted to hear it, your lordship."

Good News

"Yes, it's good news for the country, isn't it?" Lord Arranmore remarked. "I have not quite decided what my particular line shall be, but I have no doubt but that the papers will all be calling me a welcome addition to that august assembly before long. I believe that's what's the matter with me. I want to make a speech."

"The pate here is delicious," Mr. Hennibul said; "but for heaven's sake leave the champagne alone. There's some decent hock. You'll excuse my pointing out these little things to you, but of course you don't know the run yet. I'll give you a safe tip while I'm about it. The Opposition food is beastly. By the by, did you know that they are going to make me a judge?"

"I heard that your friends wanted to get rid of you," Arranmore answered.

"To make yourself obnoxious—thoroughly obnoxious," Mr. Hennibul murmured, "is the sure road to advancement."

"That's right, give me a few tips," Lord Arranmore begged, sipping his wine.

"My dear fellow, I don't know what you're going in for yet."

"Neither do I. What about the stage? I used to be rather good at private theatricals. Elderly Wyndhamy parts, you know."

Mr. Hannibul shook his head.

"Twenty years too late," he declared. "Even the suburbs turn up their noses at a Lord now."

"I must do something," Arranmore declared, mediatively.

"Don't see the necessity," Hennibul remarked.

His Advice

Lord Arranmore lifted his glass and looked thoughtfully at the wine for a moment.

"Ah, well," he said, "you were born lazy, and I was born restless. That is the reason you have done something and I haven't."

"If you want my advice—my serious advice," the K. C. said, quietly, "you will make yourself a nuisance to that right woman, whoever she is, until she marries you—if only to get rid of you."

"All sorts of things in the way," Lord Arranmore declared. "You see, I was married—abroad."

Mr. Hennibul looked up quickly.

"Nonsense!"

"Quite true, I assure you."

"Is she alive?"

"No—but her son is."

"Great Heavens! Why, he's Lord Kingston?"

"Of course he is."

"How old is he?"

"Twenty-eight—or somewhere thereabouts."

"What is he doing? Where is he? Why don't we know him?"

"He doesn't approve of me," Lord Arranmore said. "Fact, really! We are scarcely on speaking terms."

"Why not?"

"Says I deserted his mother. So I did! Played the blackguard altogether. Left 'em both to starve, or next door to it!"

Mr. Hennibul fetched out his handkerchief and dabbed his forehead.

"You are serious, Arranmore?"

"Rather! You wouldn't expect me to be frivolous on this hock."

"A Good Fairy"

"That young man must be talked to," Mr. Hennibul declared. "He ought to be filling his proper place in the world. It's no use carrying on a grudge against his own father. Let me have a try at him."

"No," Lord Arranmore said quietly. "I am obliged to you, Hennibul, but the matter is one which does not admit of outside interference, however kindly. Besides, the boy is right. I wilfully deserted both him and his mother, and she died during my absence."

Mr. Hennibul went on with his supper in silence. Lord Arranmore, whose appetite had soon failed him, leaned back in his chair and watched the people in the further room.

"This rather puts me off politics," he remarked after a while. "I don't like the look of the people."

"Oh," Mr. Hennibul said, "this is a rank and file affair. You mustn't judge by appearances. But why must you specialize? Take my advice. Don't go in specially for politics, or society, or sport. Mix them all up. Be cosmopolitan and commonplace."

"Upon my word, Hennibul, you are a genius," Arranmore declared, "and yonder goes my good fairy."

He sprang up and disappeared into the further room.

"Lady Caroom!" he exclaimed, bending over her shoulder. "I never suspected it of you."

She started slightly—she was silent perhaps for the fraction of a second. Then she looked up with a bright smile, meeting him on his own ground.

"But of you," she cried, "it is incredible. Come at once and explain."

"I want an excuse," he declared, laying down the carte, "for a good long chat. We shall be too late for the theatre, so we may as well resign ourselves to an hour or so of one another's society."

She shook her head.

"A very apt excuse for unwarrantable greediness," she declared. "Surely we can talk without eating?"

He shook his head.

"You do not smoke, and you do not drink liqueurs," he remarked. "Now I have noticed that it is simply impossible for one to sit before an empty table after dinner and not feel that one ought to go. Let the waiter take your cape. You will find the room warm."

"Do you remember," she asked him, "the first time we dined together?"

He looked at her with twinkling eyes.

"Rather! It was my introduction to your uncle's household. Selina sat on my left, and Louise on my right. You sat opposite, sad and disagreeable."

"I was tired—and I am always disagreeable."

"I have noticed it," he agreed, equably. "I hope you like oysters."

Confidences

"If Selina were to see us now," she remarked, with a sudden humorous smile, "how shocked she would be."

"What a little far-away world it seems down there," he said thoughtfully. "After all, I am glad that I have not to live in Medchester all my life."

"You have been there this afternoon, haven't you?"

"Yes. Henslow is giving us a lot of trouble. I am afraid we shall lose the seat next election."

"Do you mind?"

"Not much. I am no party politician. I want to see Medchester represented by a man who will go there with a sense of political proportion, and I don't care whether he calls himself Liberal, or Radical, or Conservative, or Unionist."

"Please explain what you mean by that," she begged.

To be Continued.

Brooks Enlists a Recruit

BROOKS had found a small restaurant in the heart of fashionable London, where the appointments and decorations were French, and the waiters were not disposed to patronize. Of the cooking neither he nor Mary Scott in those days was a critic. Nevertheless she protested against the length of the dinner which he ordered.

TO MAKE YOURSELF LOOK SLIM

IF you wish to look slim, don't dress in white or light-colored materials.

Shun all large patterns.

Stripes are more becoming than spots or checks; but narrow, not broad, stripes should be worn. Choose a material the pattern of which runs in perpendicular lines.

Short skirts are still very becoming; flowing draperies, on the other hand, give grace.

A long central line of trimming from throat to hem adds a certain height; so does a single flounce at the foot of the skirt.

Many frills should be avoided.

TO POLISH THE NAILS

A SIMPLE way to polish nails after washing and manicuring is to rub the nails of one hand on the open palm of the other for a few seconds. This simple method gives them a beautifully glossy look.

Where Woman Gets the Better of Man

IN most things men have greatly the advantage of women, but in a few—a very few—the sex feminine may count itself more fortunate than its brothers.

Thus in Summer, when the new straw hat is seen, the possession of a hatpin makes for happiness. A man may be six feet tall and broad according; he may have a majestic intellect and know all about calculus and draw poker, but none of these facts keeps his hat from blowing off when he rounds a corner suddenly and is met by an unsuspected gale.

While he is chasing his headwear down the street, anathematizing wildly, and aware that he has an undignified escort of small boys and dogs at his heels, the most diminutive of his feminine friends may glide by hatted and in her right mind and looking her surprise at his excitement.

She Has the Hatpin

Altogether the hatpin may be counted as distinctly among the advantages of the weaker sex, and as compensating in some degree for its many afflictions.

The lingerie waist is another compensating item on the feminine side of the ledger. When the day is hot and sultry, and life is a tiresome thing, and clothes are an almost unbearable necessity, then it is that the value of the lingerie waist is demonstrated to the full. Man, lord of creation that he is, is horribly uncomfortable in a shirt of more or less thickness and a collar of more or less stiffness, while his sisters and his cousins and his aunts, even though they are not allowed the right of suffrage, are comfortably arrayed in waists which are one part gauze and three parts lace. He's a proud creature, is man, but he would exchange his best briar pipe sometimes for the privilege of wearing a gossamer fabric on his own account.

Must Keep on Collar

At a dance, while men have the privilege of choosing with whom they will trip the light fantastic or whether they will trip at all, they have not the right of baring their throats to the breezes, but must perforce wrestle the night through with wilted linen and damp starch.

Man can step on and off street cars while these vehicles are in motion, it is true—but women can pursue the bargain to its lair and seize it while it is warm.

Men can smoke—but gentle woman can make caramels that will melt in the mouth.

Even the youngest masculine never has to worry with a chaperon—but when he reaches years of discretion he has to shave every day, which is to say he is a martyr.

A woman may show that she is afraid of anything from a mouse to a burglar—but a man must be able to look down the muzzle of an able-bodied revolver in the hands of an enemy without flinching if he is to be thought brave.

Altogether, a careful resume of the subject shows that not all of the advantages are with the men. Women have a few of their own which render things more nearly even than those who have not considered the subject would suppose.

CURRANT CATSUP.

FIVE pounds of currants mashed, stewed and rubbed through a strainer; add one pint of vinegar, three pounds of sugar and one tablespoon of cinnamon, one tablespoon of cloves, one tablespoon of allspice and one teaspoon of black pepper and one teaspoon of salt. Boil all together twenty minutes and bottle like tomato catsup. This has a delicate flavor, unlike any other catsup. MISS FREDA ECHMAN.

GRAPE CATSUP

COOK six pounds of blue grapes, Concords if possible, till soft. Then strain through a sieve. Add to the grapes three pounds of granulated sugar, one tablespoon each of cinnamon, allspice and clove, black pepper to taste, a dessertspoon of salt and one pint of vinegar. Boil until it begins to thicken, then bottle.

Plums and cherries both make excellent catsups and can be made from this same recipe.

PEARS CANNED IN PLUM JUICE

When canning plums put up a quart of the juice, to use a little later in canning pears. After paring, quartering and removing the cores from the pears, cook until tender in the plum juice. "Alligator Joe," Wonderland Performer, Creates Corner in the Saurian Market

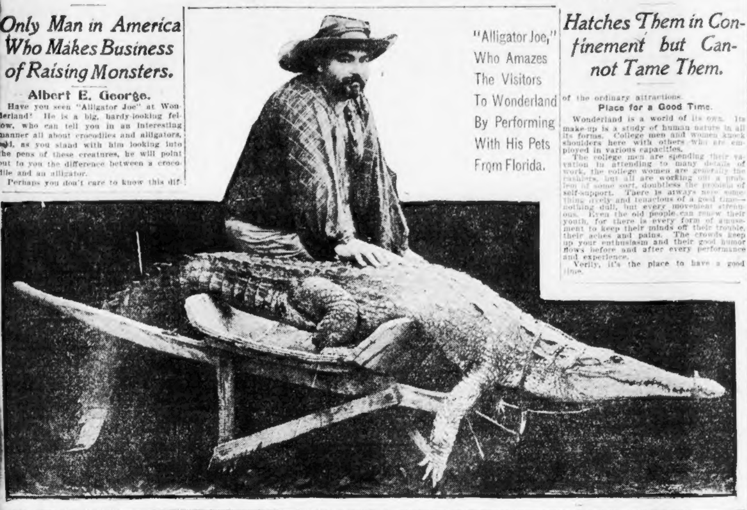
Only Man in America Who Makes Business of Raising Monsters.



"Alligator Joe," Who Amazes The Visitors To Wonderland By Performing With His Pets From Florida.

Hatches Them in Confinement but Cannot Tame Them.

Albert E. George.

Have you seen "Alligator Joe" at Wonderland? He is a big, hardy-looking fellow, who can tell you in an interesting manner all about crocodiles and alligators, and, as you stand with him looking into the pens of these creatures, he will point out to you the difference between a crocodile and an alligator.

Perhaps you don't care to know this difference, but see "Joe" and get him "worked up" over the subject and you'll want to know all about his show. Joe knows every inch of Southern Florida and where his pets hang out, for what he doesn't know about the haunts of these queer-looking animals, who are always apparently sleeping or basking in the sunshine, is hard to find. All you have to do is to question him and then comes the flood of his experience, which is full of adventure and skill.

Before he went into the exhibition business, he used to hunt the alligator for his skin. He's a dead shot and no alligator escaped him. With his bull's eye lantern he would get within six or eight inches of his victim and then bang away at him in a vulnerable spot and return home with a little vessel laden with his trophy.

Only Man in Business.

But Joe only hunts now to get a good specimen alive for his tanks in the sunny South. He has found it very profitable business and made $25,000 one season. Down South he wants fifty cents admission to his museum, but up North, he says, as the people don't see any alligators, he lets them into the show for ten cents. He is the only man in America in this kind of business and he commands the market. Only recently he sold a crocodile for $1,000, and now a New York aquarium has offered him $2,500 for one of his specimens, but Joe can't let him go for that figure. He has certainly cornered the market and he feels he can get a better price.

"How can you tell the age of those alligators?" For one is said to 1,834 years old.

"I dunno know," he replied. "One of them men came down to Florida and looked into their mouth. He's a professor in Washington somewhere, and has studied them. I don't know how to tell, but he knows, and he told me, so I put up these signs that ye see yonder."

"See, here's a piece of jaw of that one over there," pointing to a particular one in the pen. "See the place where it came from? Well, they were fighting and they'll fight till they kill one another if you let them."

"What do you feed them?"

"Only fish, but they won't eat poor fish. It has to be fresh fish. They're mighty particular."

As one goes around watching these peculiar creatures, who look so sleepy and indifferent and apparently harmless, Joe arouses your curiosity by telling you how active they are when they want to be, and how quick that jaw is, as it lies open apparently to get the air, but really to tempt some innocent sparrow to alight upon its edge and then to be snapped out of sight.

Joe raises alligators from the eggs, and has attempted to domesticate them, but they will not be tamed. He has tried every way to get them under control, and even the one he handles before the crowd to win them to his exhibition has been shaken well as he takes it from its box, and then he is able to manipulate it in its numb state to attract the people.

This is a most interesting place to visit because it is unique, and Joe makes everyone feel a renewed interest in crocodiles and dream of Moses in the bulrushes on the river Nile.

"Is it alive?" asked an elderly, serious-minded man as he peered into the baby incubator, and was astonished at the mechanism of the arrangements to maintain an even temperature.

"Yes, it's very much alive," retorted the attendant.

"Oh, I thought it was a doll," came back the reply. "Anyway, I believe in the old-fashioned way after all. These new ideas are too much for me."

Then comes a heap of other questions by spectators as they witness the graduation of babies from the incubator into the hands of a nurse, where their diet and weight are carefully watched.

So intense is the interest of the women in this exhibition that it is always well crowded with them and affords no end of attraction to those who have heard about these incubators and now see them in working order.

"Under the Sea" shows how much of a fish a human being under constant training may become. Eugene Fielding and his sister, Margaret, give splendid exhibitions of skill and endurance in the water, and these, with the accomplishments of Captain Wallis and Mme. Sirene, together with the ingenuity of Bert Letter, make a good showing, well worth the price of admission, as they are entertaining and are out of the ordinary attractions.

Place for a Good Time.

Wonderland is a world of its own. Its make-up is a study of human nature in all its forms. College men and women knock shoulders here with others who are employed in various capacities.

The college men are spending their vacation in attending to many details of work, the college women are generally the cashiers, but all are working out a problem of some sort, doubtless the problem of self-support. There is always here something lively and tenacious of a good time—nothing dull, but every movement strenuous. Even the old people can renew their youth, for there is every form of amusement to keep their minds off their trouble, their aches and pains. The crowds keep up your enthusiasm and their good humor flows before and after every performance and experience.

Verily, it's the place to have a good time.

30 Cents' Worth Free Tickets for Wonderland in Sunday's American

Next Sunday's Boston American will publish thirty cents' worth of free tickets for Wonderland. They include admission to the park, the Velvet Coaster and the visitor's choice of the Rocky Mountain Holdup or the Mexican Bull Fight in Hale's Tours.

The Bull Fight is a new film production put on for the first time at Wonderland. It shows an up-to-date contest between trained bull-fighters and a maddened beast.

The Rocky Mountain Holdup is a daring raid upon a stage coach by bandits, who in turn are chased and shot.

Admission to the park gives ticket holders access to the Wonderland circus, including Alligator Joe in the act of hypnotizing a Florida alligator.

MEYER TO ASK CONGRESS FOR PARCELS POST

Proposes to Establish System Long Fought by Express Trust.

LODGE DODGES THE TARIFF

Next to comment on the ominous absence of Senator Crane, Republican politicians generally chose to-day to discuss Postmaster-General George von L. Meyer's declaration for the parcels post as the most notable incident of yesterday's Nantasket Beach outing of the Young Men's Republican Club of Dorchester. "I am going to ask Congress," said Mr. von L. Meyer, "to give me the right to establish a parcels post throughout the country, at a weight not to exceed, for a trial, five or ten pounds. I have also in mind the increasing of deliveries in the large cities."

Would Get in Swim Again.

Von L. Meyer wants to be one of the four delegates-at-large to the next Republican national convention. He has been ambassador to Italy and ambassador to Russia. Yesterday was his first appearance at a Massachusetts political gathering in years. The delegates will be chosen next Spring.

The Dorchester Republicans, 300 strong, heard Governor Guild come out strongly on the general proposition of stifling all competition in transportation—and then explain that he has turned the merger matter over to his new Commission on Commerce and Industry, who will report as experts.

They heard Senator Lodge declare that it must be State issues and not national issues in the coming campaign—and then decline to discuss either. Senator Lodge talked about the "Surplus in the United States Treasury."

They heard Lieutenant-Governor Draper characterize as "hot air" the morning paper story of differences between the Governor and himself, and the more generally credited story of a break between Crane and Lodge.

Lodge, von L. Meyer and Guild didn't get any too close to the proletariat. With Lieutenant-Governor Draper, they were locked in the directors' room of the Nantasket steamer South Shore all the way from Boston to the beach. The quartet talked about the Walter Wellman chase for the North Pole. Not a word was said about politics. Senator Lodge did not inquire what each of the others was to talk about. He offered no suggestions about the speeches. The words, "coming campaign," were not used by anybody.

Lodge Quits Common Herd.

When Lodge had made his speech in the dance hall at the Point, he and Guild and von L. Meyer hurried back to town on the 5:40 boat, an hour ahead of the hoi polloi. The h. p. waited for Draper and S. O. Bigney of Attleboro.

John K. Berry, who presided, informed Vice-President Fairbanks that the Bay State is never so short of speakers that the club "needed to be at all disturbed" by Fairbanks's failure to show up. On the platform with the orators were Postmaster Hibbard, Assistant Postmaster Haynes, United States Marshal Charles K. Darling, State Treasurer Chapin and Attorney-General Dana Malone.

MAN RUN OVER; SEEK AUTOISTS

GLOUCESTER, Aug. 9.—The police of Gloucester are to-day trying to find the owners and occupants of an automobile which last night ran over Albert Paul, twenty-five years of age, of Beverly, on Western avenue. Paul recovered partial consciousness early to-day in the Addison Gilbert Hospital and was able to give his name and address, but could not say who ran him down last night.

Paul was found by a party in the auto of J. C. Bowler of Springfield. They took him to the residence of Dr. P. H. Moore, who sent him to the hospital. It is thought that he will recover.

MURDER WAVE SWEEPS SERVIA

VIENNA, Austria, Aug. 9.—An epidemic of assassination is sweeping across Servia. Hardly a day goes by but what some political murder is committed. This is the news which comes in a private telegram from Semlin, just across the river from Belgrade. News of the murders, however, is being carefully kept away from the outside world.

The latest victim is said to have been Rista Popowitsch, leader of the National party in Servia.

Little or no effort is being made to check the epidemic of slaying, as no political leader is safe in Servia.

NATIONAL BISCUIT COMPANY

LITTLE FRANK MOVES AGAIN

Little Frankie Owens leaves the Chardon Street Home to-day for New Hampshire, either to an orphanage or to the care of an aunt who has been discovered by the authorities.

The boy's mother is utterly incompetent to care for the boy, the police declare, and they have discovered that she has a younger child with her now, who will probably come into the care of the State shortly.

They will be sorry to see the little fellow go at the Chardon Street Home, but it is not a permanent home for waifs and he must be removed to some place where he can be supported at the expense of the State of New Hampshire, where he was born.

TO BUILD GIANT PLANT AND BARN

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 9.—Plans are completed and the contract will shortly be let by the Rhode Island Company for a $125,000 car barn and repair shop on Social street, Woonsocket, which will be one of the largest undertakings in the way of new buildings contemplated by the company for immediate prosecution. This shop will be a complete plant for all the processes incident to the maintenance and operation of a street railway system independently.

The building is to be on the site of the present wooden shops. The new structure will be two stories in height, with a handsome tower, and front 127 feet on Social street and 480 feet on Diamond Hill road.

CONRIED HELD FOR FATALITY

GENEVA, Aug. 9.—Heinrich Conried, director of the Metropolitan Opera House in New York, will be seriously inconvenienced as a result of the fatal auto accident Wednesday, when his car ran down and killed a deaf and dumb man near Lassehn. Conried has been forbidden to leave Switzerland until after the trial of his chauffeur, Ernest Stahl, fixed for late in October. His enforced stay may delay the opening of the Metropolitan season.

Conried may even be indicted as an accessory in the crime of manslaughter, with which Stahl has already been charged.

Relatives of the victim are demanding an exorbitant sum to settle their claim for damages.

EDISON TRUST VENTS SPITE ON NEEDHAM

Campaign of Oppression in Revenge for Light Investigation by Town.

REFUSE NEW CONNECTIONS

NEEDHAM, Aug. 9.—Because this town has appointed a committee to investigate the question of municipal lighting, the Edison Electric Illuminating Company has commenced a campaign of oppression in the town. The street and commercial lighting in Needham is now done by the Edison company.

During the past few weeks the officials of the company have absolutely refused to connect any more houses with their wires for commercial lighting. Their excuse is that they do not desire to add to their equipment in the town pending the report of the municipal lighting committee. The citizens of the town who desire light are highly indignant, and say it is a case of spite on the part of the company, simply because the town has had the audacity to consider the question of doing its own lighting.

N. H. Suren, a leading citizen and head of the experimental department of the Gamewell Fire Alarm Telegraph Company, is the latest to have his request for house lighting refused. Mr. Suren desired to have the beautiful Washburn estate on Nehoiden street, which he has recently purchased, connected for lighting. Although he guaranteed the company an annual income of $60 on an outlay, at their own figure, of only $118, they refused to connect his house. Now he says he will install a generating plant of his own.

The attitude of the Edison company's officials has convinced Mr. Suren, he says, that the town should operate its own plant. Other citizens share this view, and when the report of the special committee is submitted to the annual town meeting it is prophesied that it will mean the exit of the Edison company from the town.

DEATH AND INJURY IN AUTO'S PATH

Machine Collides with Two Carriages, Throwing Occupants to the Ground.

WOMAN DYING; FOUR HURT

FALL RIVER, Aug. 9.—One woman is dying and two other women, a man and an infant boy are seriously injured as the result of a collision of an auto with two carriages on the State road between this city and New Bedford last night. The auto is owned by W. H. Manchester of No. 100 Stewart street, Providence, R. I., and was driven by Chauffeur O'Brien.

The chauffeur attempted to drive the machine between two carriages and struck both of them. The occupants of both were thrown to the ground. Mrs. Joseph Ziolette of Barlow street was severely hurt about her head and spine, and received internal injuries which, the physicians say, will cause her death. Her sister, Miss Bertha Mongeon, who was driving with her, was injured about the head and body. The other carriage was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas King of Westport and their infant boy. All were thrown to the ground and badly hurt. Mr. Manchester, his wife and two young women who refused to give their names occupied the auto. They were unhurt.

With two in the basket and only one on the outside, the Hub team looks pretty good to the home fans to catch another to-day from the champion Sox. It's pretty hard picking, but the Champions will probably be a slight favorite because they are due to win and their class entitles them to hold at top figures.

It took the Pilgrims to knock them down out of second place, and there seems to be no limit to the local team's accomplishments when they get started.

To see this series with the Sox would give the outsider the impression that two teams were settling the pennant between them instead of a gap of three places in the standing separating them.

Locals Want Hard Foe to Fight.

Give the home team a hard foe to fight and let them get the lead and things break right and it's a safe bet they will clean up the job.

The Sox have a couple of regulars in the box yet to call on in Patterson and Owens, while Dr. White, who pitched only two innings yesterday is likely to get more work. The Pilgrims will have to rely on Ralph Glaze to mark the champs.

As a mid-Summer carnival of sport that double-header yesterday was about the biggest thing in sport so far.

To the 15,000 odd fans it was all the more palatable because the Pilgrims were almost able to pocket both games and the change of opinion did not come till near the close of the second, when the Sox counted enough to win and were able to break even and saved their mution.

The first meeting was stowed away by the score of 6 to 1 and the second one was being plucked by apparently as good a margin when up came the Sox in the eighth inning and made enough runs to go into the lead and hold it, marching out with a 6 to 4 tag.

Winter Won First Game.

George Winter's pitching and some good, old-fashioned slambanging against Strongman Frank Smith won the opening skirmish, and it's not far off the mark to say that the Pilgrims were outlucked in the second game when they failed to land.

Pruitt was pitching grand ball and three hits in seven innings gives some indication of his acting, but in a twinkling of an eye the complexion of the game, which stood 4 to 0 in favor of the Pilgrims, was changed by the Sox gathering six scores and in the midst of the agony Pruitt was pulled out and Morgan, the new man, sent to the rescue, but the damage had been done and nothing was forthcoming in the two innings to change the aspect.

A more artistic exhibition in the box than Winter gave when he faced the Sox has not been staged this season. The Sox had no business to score, their one tally coming after two were down and Wagner let a ball go through his legs. After that but one runner saw third and he was caught napping.

Then Charley Pruitt took the station to duplicate Winter's feat against big Ed Walsh. He was getting the best of the star box twirler when he went soaring and some lucky hitting by the Sox made it compulsory to bench him.

DOUBLE-HEADER NOTES.

When Barrett led off with a double over Pat Dougherty's head there was a noise like a hundred cannon roaring. This was only an echo when Congalton bounded one over Isbell's head, scoring Jimmy.

Wagner soaked Jones in the head with the ball, making an assist off Isbell's hit, and the sphere bounded into the bleachers. The Sox put up a big holler to let Issy score, but Connolly said he didn't see the ball after it dented Jones's cranium.

In the fourth inning Winter went into the dressing room and put on his red shirt for luck.

And talk about pitchers playing their positions, perhaps that lightning work of George's on Davis's bunt was not all the candy.

Wagner gave big Ed Walsh a shock when he had three and two on the Boston shortstop by whipping one to deep left for three bases.

Old George Davis appeared just as nimble as in his palmiest days when he ran into left field and took Barrett's low fly, going backward.

There wasn't room inside the grounds for the kids, so they were allowed to shin the big right field fence and roost. Many of them could not withstand the temptation to get closer to the gate, and slipped inside.

A cheer went up when old Cy first went on the coaching line. The hero of the day before was not forgotten, in spite of the intensity of the double fray.

Little Hahn got away with a neat trick by hitting Unglaub's hand and making the captain drop the ball on Wagner's assist, but the protest was not allowed by Connolly for interference.

Bob was thoroughly riled up and got after Connolly pretty strong, and the arbitrator sent him to the bench. It was in the last inning and his absence was not felt.

If Hahn's single hadn't bounded away from Ferris and Isbell's hit hadn't sidestepped Sullivan, the Sox would never have won the second game.

That lucky triple of Isbell's was responsible for three runs, and Issy scored himself on Davis's swat.

Unglaub dug one out of the dirt in the first game which was the real goods and saved Knight an error.

Jim Bardell, the Sox trainer, sat in the front row of the stand. President Johnson passed a rule a few weeks ago which does not allow trainers on the bench.

H. M. Schraudenbach, alias "Rowdy," alias "James Clarkson," alias "Sol Plex," the Chicago Examiner war correspondent, who has been travelling with the White Sox, left for home yesterday to look after his aliases.

Special to the Boston American.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 9.—What do you know about that! Seven straight games have been lost by the Doves, and to second division teams, too.

When the Doves first visited the Reds they were in sixth place, just a nose behind the Trolley Dodgers. They left Porktown in seventh place, and now if they don't look out they may finish the season in the tailend position.

A short month ago things were breaking right for the Doves, and they were holding down fifth place rather securely. Brooklyn took a big brace, and the Boston team gradually went on a slump, with the result that it is now in the midst of a crash that may not be offset until it has the record of losses for last season—nineteen—smashed.

If the Doves are ever going to win again they should do so against the tailenders. When the Hub team won two games in Chicago and the same number in Pittsburg, it looked as though it would do something in Cincinnati and here, but such has not been the case.

Pat Flaherty, the crack southpaw of the visitors, may go in to-day, to see if he can stem the tide of defeat, while Beebe will most likely do the honors for the home team.

AUTOISTS WILL HOLD BIG OUTING ON SEPTEMBER 6

BY J. C. KERRISON.

The committee consisting of the presidents of the automobile associations of this State, having in charge the outing at Hotel Wentworth, held an interesting meeting yesterday and determined upon several important matters. The committee decided that the outing should start Friday, September 6, and continue until the following Monday. Friday will be the meeting day in all fairness, the members coming from all sections of the State. Saturday morning the festivities will commence, a short tour being held. After dinner will come the meeting of the members and talks by some of the most prominent motorists in the country. In the evening dancing and progressive heart party will be the order of the evening. Sunday no formal exercises will be held, the tourists making a short run to a point where a real old-fashioned clambake can be enjoyed. Monday will be the day of sports, Mine Host Frank Hall having in mind the holding of another set of gymkhana sports, such as proved so thoroughly enjoyable a few weeks ago. All of the clubs affiliated with the A. A. A. have called club runs for Wentworth for September 6, and if the proper spirit prevails there should be a great gathering on the days in question.

The New York Globe recently said:

"The old adage that a new broom sweeps well is fulfilled in the case of the Fiat automobile, imported, and sold by the Hol-Tan Company of Broadway. Mr. Fosdick took the place of one of the partners who formerly directed things for the company, and on his arrival from Boston things commenced to move rapidly. Sales amounting to over ten machines the past few days is testimony enough that the long experience in the automobile trade of Harry Fosdick is telling in New York as it would tell anywhere.'

TWO LOCAL MEN WILL MEET IN BOUT TO-NIGHT

What promises to be a good night's sport is due to take place this evening at Chelsea. The top liners are Fred Bradley, of Roxbury, who has been performing very creditably at Philadelphia recently, and the wallop merchant from the market district, Jerry Gaines.

Bradley seems confident of being able to repeat his performance of last year, when he beat Gaines, but he will discover that the Cambridge man has made considerable progress as a boxer since that occasion.

There is much interest in the bout between the big fellows and they are sure to furnish an interesting contest for the large assemblage of members that are sure to be present to witness the event.

The three preliminaries look good. The secretary states that only bona fide members will be admitted, and it will be futile for any man who does not possess a card to visit Chelsea to-night to try and witness the events.

GRACE MAUD WAS A SLEEPER FOR FAIR

Special to the Boston American.

WOONSOCKET, R. I., Aug 9.—There was a sleeper for sure in the 2:26 trot at the driving park and her name was Grace Maud. The Readville trained mare Rebecca G., owned by Fred Stewart of South Boston, was made favorite, while Grace Maud was entirely overlooked.

It was so handy for her to win in straight heats that Harry Brusie bought her for $1,000. Chauncy Sears of Fall her for $1,500, Chauncy Sears of Fall but that figure would not reach. She is by Hiram Abiff, dam Maud G. 2:28¾, by Victor.

Jimmie Carpenter was happy as a clam in high water in the showing Rebecca G., made, as she not only copped second money but displayed every indication of having the ability to place the three ones opposite to her name when the time is ripe. It was a severe test to start a mare and her initial race in a field of fourteen horses over a half-mile track and just wide enough for five horses to score abreast.

"Doc" King gave Nance O'Neil her second race of the week, this time earning third money, but in reality went a better race than the one she won on the opening day of the meeting.

"Whitey" Crowley had a big gap on the bunch the first heat at the three quarter pole with Mary M., but then Grace Maud ate the intervening distance up in quick order.

There was a lot who thought Young Chimes would have his winning career checked in the 2:14 pace. Never was there a chance to beat him, however, after once the first turn was passed the first heat, as he could pace at will rings around his opponents.

The free-for-all was a scorcher. Six heats gone and the winner to be found this afternoon. E. E. Bosca, owner of Ben Como, drove the second race of his life, and the way that he handled the gelding brought him praise from all sides. When the battle seemed lost to Gloria he had Dr. Kendrick try his hand in driving the fourth heat, but the extra seventy pounds the doctor weighs more than Bosca anchored Ben Como before the mile was finished. Then Bosca again resumed his seat in the sulky with the result he made the fifth heat a dead one, and cleverly won the sixth, and the big crowd yelled in joy.

It was evident all through the race that Ben Como was fighting the other three in the race. "Anything to beat the grey gelding" was the motto on the wall. They tried pocketing Bosca, and carrying him wide on the turns, but when darkness called a halt he was still there with the goods.

This afternoon only Gloria and Ben Como take the word. Phoebon W., having to remain in the stable under the ruling that when two horses having won two heats each have a dead heat, then the other heat winners are ruled out of the race.

The pacing record for the track is 2:11¼, and the trotting mark 2:15¼. Prizes are offered to the horse lowering either record.

In both of the pacing classes the only starter that did not wear straplettes was Louise E., the nice little Somerville wiggler.

The management has agreed to the wishes of the horsemen and will continue the meeting through next week. All of the horses that took the word this week have entered for another week at the money hung up in purses.

You can always get Frank Jones Ales where you see our RED, WHITE AND BLUE QUALITY MARK. Ask for it—insist on getting it—then you get the best glass of ale a nickel can buy.

If you prefer a rich, creamy ale, ask for "Frank Jones Lively Cream Ale." Also when you want bottled ales remember "Frank Jones" are best.

The fight will be held in the day time, and it has not been decided where it will be held, but the probabilities are it will be held in the new ball park in the heart of the city, Fourteenth and Valancia streets.

HUB CARRIERS WON.

Boston letter carriers' speedy ball team scored a great victory over the New Everetts at Everett in a ten-inning game, 9 to 8. The all-around work of O'Hara, Brown and Mauser and the twirling of O'Brien were the features.

NAME BABY ELEPHANT AT PARAGON AND GET PRIZE

Red Dollar Sign Girl Will Bestow Title on Youngster Next Sunday.

The long talked of ceremony of naming the Paragon Park baby elephant will take place next Sunday.

Thousands of people interested in the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN'S Buried Treasure hunt and the naming of the elephant will gather at Paragon Park, and, while seeking health, fun and the hidden gold, will impart to the three-year-old elephant a name intended to stick by him for the remaining 497 years of his normally estimated career.

Everyone paying admission to the park will be entitled to suggest a name. Blanks will be distributed at the gate upon which the elephant's name may be written with the name and address of the visitor.

For further convenience the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN will publish a blank form which may be filled out at the leisure of the reader, cut out and deposited when Paragon Park is reached next Sunday.

Beauty to Bestow Name.

The Original Red Dollar Sign girl, the ...yan beauty, who by the adoption of disguises and ingenious effort performed successfully four consecutive Sundays at Wonderland and Paragon Park, has been invited by Manager Dodge to christen the baby elephant after its name has been selected.

The plan for naming the baby elephant is simple. Upon entering the park visitors will deposit their filled-out slips containing their name and address and the proposed name of the baby elephant. A corps of judges appointed by the park and the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN will go over the entire list during the day, setting apart the most fitting names, which will be looked over again and again until twenty-five of the most suitable names will be set aside. One of these found the most fitting will be given the elephant. The visitor who suggests it will be given $25.

The twenty next best names suggested will be worth five dollars each to those proposing them.

Everybody Has Chance.

The next act in this drama will be to lead the baby elephant to the Plaza, announce the prize winners and pay them, after which the Original Red Dollar Sign girl will formally bestow the name upon the kneeling baby elephant.

Everyone has an equal opportunity to win the money. By exercising careful thought in selecting a suitable title for the Baby Elephant you may find the trip to Paragon Park and the great Red Dollar hunt of the SUNDAY AMERICAN profitable as well as pleasant.

$125 in gold is given in addition to the regular $200 in hidden treasure making a total of $325 in gold and $165.50 in free tickets to be given away next Sunday at Paragon Park. See the SUNDAY AMERICAN for hints as to how to obtain the money.

SUNDAY AMERICAN WILL GIVE TICKETS FOR NEW SHOWS

The newest addition to the Revere Beach free ticket plan is the "Trip to the Moon" or "Air Ships" at the Nautical Garden. Next SUNDAY'S BOSTON AMERICAN will publish a half fare coupon for this and the many other leading attractions on the Boulevard and avenues.

The "Trip to the Moon" is located in the east wing of the Nautical Gardens, with an airship suspended over the entrance, equipped with a powerful syren call whistle. Entrance to the airship is gained by a boardwalk up an incline and through a door seemingly cut through the wall of an oblong hollow vehicle in which rows of seats are placed.

The airship seems to shoot upward or to descend at the will of the steersman. The journey appears to lead over cities and towns, icebergs, bodies of water, through electric storms, and finally to the North Pole, represented by a volcano in wonderful eruption.

The other Revere Beach half fare coupons are for Rollaway Skating Rink, Mystic Hill, Roller Coaster, Rough Rider Hippodrome, Musical Railway, Theatre Comique, Auto-Go-Round, Fairyland Theatre, Palace Merry-Go-Round, Automatic Bowling Alley, and Hurley's Hurdlers. See the SUNDAY AMERICAN for the free tickets.

The theatre at Canobie Lake is being packed with visitors many times each day, and the park in general is receiving patronage unexcelled in its history. Next Sunday's BOSTON AMERICAN will publish free coupons entitling holders to full admission to the theatre, a free ride in the Circle Swing and a run on the Roller Coaster.

Lexington Park free tickets of admission will be published Sunday as usual, and the beasts and birds will welcome the big family parties as guests of the AMERICAN two days next week.

How Much Do YOU Say Browne's Bossy Grazed?

F...ever how much ground area did Browne's Bossy eat?

That is certainly an interesting problem to Boston's thinkers. It is interesting hundreds of them. Dozens of letters have already been received, each one, of course, purporting to answer it correctly.

Have you tried it?

Here it is:

A cow is tied to the corner of a barn twenty-five feet square by a rope one hundred feet long. Over how much ground will it be possible for her to graze?

This cow originally belonged to Professor S. J. Browne, Washington University, St. Louis. Being a Missourian, Browne asks you to show him. The cow's feeding ground area may give you a brainstorm, but just try it. Come to an answer and then write it to the Problem Editor of the BOSTON AMERICAN. Write out the explanation of your conclusions as briefly as you can.

Here are some answers received:

Smith Says It's 30,791.

Problem Editor—Browne's cow can graze over 30,791 square feet. WILLIAM E. SMITH. Portland, Me.

E. F. R. Has an Answer.

Problem Editor—There are 1,288.28 square feet in the part of the circle upon which the cow cannot graze. There are the square of 100 times 3.1416 or 31,416 square feet in the whole circle. This gives the cow, after deductions, 30,615.22 square feet upon which to graze. E. F. R. Roxbury.

Uses Trigonometry.

Problem Editor—To find the grazing area as per proposition in the AMERICAN, I used trigonometry and find the answer to be 30,298 square feet. F. H. New Bedford.

Gives Bossie 15,083 Feet.

Problem Editor—My answer to the new problem of "Browne's cow" is the following: The diameter of the circle the cow has to graze over is 200 feet, and 200²X.7854—the square feet, 15,708, the cow can get over, and from this deduct 625 feet, the size of the shed the cow is fastened to, and we have 15,083 feet, the actual ground the cow can get at. R. B., Providence.

What do YOU think about it? Don't forget the rope in figuring your circle. The rope will not be 100 feet long all around that shed. Be careful. It is a brainstormer. Go in and win out.

Write your answers with a good understandable explanation so that every one will see how you work it out.

FILE ST. GAUDENS'S WILL.

THE BOSTON AMERICAN

80 AND 82 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, AUGUST 9, 1907

What Rockefeller Might Say to the American People

He Certainly Illustrates the Mysterious Ways of Providence

Copyright, 1907, by American-Journal-Examiner

Mr. Rockefeller, like many other Americans, has been making all the money he could, and he hasn't always been extraordinarily particular about laws or the rights of others.

Recently there came the news that his company had been fined more than twenty-nine millions of dollars for breaking the law. (Not paid yet, not going to be paid.)

On top of this announcement comes another, and one very much more important, if it be true, as we hope it is.

This second announcement states that certain scientists HIRED AND PAID BY MR. ROCKEFELLER have discovered a positive cure for spinal meningitis.

Everybody knows how dreadful a disease that is. It attacks children often, grown people less often, and it is practically always fatal.

It has puzzled science and afflicted humanity for a long time. Mr. Rockefeller decided to use some of his money in fighting that disease and other diseases of children. And now comes the semi-official announcement that his doctors have discovered a serum that is absolutely certain to cure the disease—or at least as valuable as the precious antitoxin of diphtheria, which saves thousands of lives a year.

Newspapers, politicians, judges, district attorneys and the public generally have been pretty free in telling Mr. Rockefeller what THEY think. How would it seem if Mr. Rockefeller should turn around and say to the public this:

"Good public, always howling together: Did you notice the discovery of the cure for spinal meningitis due to one of MY employed scientists? DUE, IN OTHER WORDS, TO SOME OF MY DOLLARS?

"Do you know that while you have been criticising me I have been spending money, and a lot of it, TO EDUCATE YOU, AND FIGHT THE DISEASES OF YOUR CHILDREN?

"If I can decrease the power of disease, if I can successfully fight on behalf of the millions of children that die unnecessarily, if I can spare the mothers the dreadful grief which ignorance inflicts upon them, do you not know that I shall be vindicated in my own eyes?

"What do YOU, the great public, do? You have at command all the resources of the country. AND YOU DO NOTHING WITH THEM.

"You have a Government which leaves it to ME to fight the diseases that destroy children, WHILE THAT GOVERNMENT SPENDS ITS MONEY INVESTIGATING DISEASES THAT DESTROY PIGS.

"Your Government spends twenty millions for a warship, I SPEND TWENTY MILLIONS FOR EDUCATION.

"Your Government has penitentiaries in which criminals are made into better thieves.

"I have a great university in which young men are taught, in which young women find an opportunity to enter the wide field of knowledge.

"I do not say I am perfect.

"I do not say that I have not put my business and its triumphs ahead of anti-trust laws, but I do say this:

"AS LONG AS YOU, THE PEOPLE, YOUR GOVERNMENT, DON'T KNOW ENOUGH TO FIGHT DISEASE AND TO SPREAD EDUCATION, BUT SPEND MILLIONS UPON MILLIONS FOR NO BETTER THINGS THAN WARSHIPS AND PRISONS, IT IS LUCKY FOR YOU THAT I KNOW HOW TO TAKE THE MONEY AWAY FROM YOU, AND TO SPEND IT FOR YOUR BENEFIT."

If old Mr. Rockefeller should write in that way, it would be difficult to deny a certain common sense in his writing. Surely it is strange that the people and the Government so vociferously denouncing great financial barons SHOULD LEAVE IT TO THOSE MEN TO FIGHT IGNORANCE AND DISEASE.

We have to look to a Pierpont Morgan to establish in New York city a lying-in hospital for women. That monument to his kind heart, that noble temple of real charity, the people must get from one of the big men that control them, or get it not at all.

As a people, as a Government, we have got as far ahead as studying the methods for curing diseases of PIGS, sheep, cows and other things WORTH MONEY.

But we leave it to John D. Rockefeller, the man who controls us financially, to spend part of our money studying ways of fighting the diseases that attack OUR CHILDREN.

If you went down to Africa, and found a few white men holding up a tribe of savages, AND AT THE SAME TIME PROTECTING THEM FROM WILD BEASTS AND SNAKES AND FEVERS AND VOODOO TRICKSTERS, YOU WOULD SAY TO THE SAVAGES: "Well, those white men may exploit you, but it is rather lucky you have got them among you."

And perhaps the future, looking back at us, may say to us:

"Since you didn't know enough to look after your children, or educate your young men, or deal kindly with unhappy women, IT'S PRETTY LUCKY YOU HAD AMONG YOU A CERTAIN COLLECTION OF BIG PIRATES ABLE TO TAKE AWAY FROM YOU ENOUGH MONEY TO DO THE THINGS THAT HAD TO BE DONE, AND THAT YOU YOURSELVES COULDN'T DO."

These Letters Are Worth While

They Make Newspaper Work Less Dull and Discouraging

Here are two letters received in a recent mail:

Letter No. 1

To Readers of BOSTON AMERICAN:

I am moved to say I enjoy more and more the editorial page. Somehow I find myself growing, broadening out, as it were, in all directions. Life is to me a new experience. It is sweeter, brighter and more hopeful. I am beginning to feel within what I never felt before. The world is new to me, the people are different than ever before to me, and I cannot rid myself of the impression that all the readers of the AMERICAN editorial page are being moulded into a life better and grander than ever before. I sometimes am envious of those who are able to send forth such ideas, for I find it a difficult matter to express my inner self with ink, pen and paper, but it is a joy to me to know what others are thinking and doing for the upbuilding of humanity. Let the good work go on, more power to you, is the sincere wish of a constant reader.

Lynn, Mass. AUGUSTINE UPTON.

Letter No. 2

Dear Sir—A fellow workman who works with me in the same shop tells me that his mother died not long ago and his father wanted to get rid of the children some way or other so he would not be bothered with them. A son-in-law of his, who is of very moderate means, took upon himself to care for the young orphans, and he treats them like his own children. "How is it possible?" I said. The man looked at me and answered, "Don't you know he is a great reader of the Hearst paper?" S. T.

The man who edits a newspaper, trying to do his best, dealing with changing conditions, making many mistakes, going around in the treadmill of daily events, gets tired and discouraged like other workers of to-day. Letters like these wipe out the discouragement.

If it is possible for a newspaper to incline a man's heart to be kind to children, if a newspaper can feel that it has made real friends of the men with whom it talks daily, if the newspaper helps to protect children from the brutality inherited from dark ages, then newspaper work is WORTH WHILE. With all its discouragements and mistakes it is not time wasted.

Why Not a Pure Public Service Bill?

By Merton Field

THE day is not far distant when science will enable us to label our public men to show just what they are made of in the same way that we label food and drugs.

It will be a tremendous convenience then, will it not, for the voter who wishes to make up his mind about his representatives?

Public men showing adulterated public interest could be declared unfit for interstate purposes, such as serving in Congress, for example, in the Senate or on the Federal bench.

Besides a Pure Public Service Bill to be passed by the nation, each State would also have its own laws and system of inspection.

It is of interest to see how such laws would work out if applied to certain conspicuous individuals of our own day.

The new human laboratory tests would produce labels something like these:

Mellen—Nerve ....50 per cent.
Standard Oil ....50 per cent.
Boston Interest ....Zero
Crane—Silence ....98 per cent.
Hatred of trusts.........Below zero
Love for Roosevelt's man.......
Way below zero
Lodge—Faith in the merger.....Adulterated
Faith in the people..Freezing point
Faith in Lodge.......101 per cent.

Many of our conspicuous coupon-cutters might not dazzle so much when once the label of science shows them up.

Our captains of railroad industry might be declared unfit for human consumption if their ingredients were truly known.

The method is very simple, and can be understood by any child. An office will shortly be opened in this city for the purpose of analyzing free of charge all samples of humanity sent in by the citizens.

It will not be necessary to produce the original article or package for inspection. All that is required is a photo, the cell number, if there has ever been a conviction, the voting record and the business affiliations of the sample to be tested.

In a few minutes the ingredients will be discovered and the public supplied with labels.

If any citizen is made ill, so to speak, henceforth by the doings of the honorable this or that, it will be due wholly to his stupidity in not asking for the official label.

Fashion Fancies

The new magnifying glasses worn by the gas meter readers look fine. They are bigger than ever.

William Waldorf Astor has decided to close up Manhattan Island for the Summer, as he soils his gloves in the dust there. It is not true that he always weighs his mortgages on hay scales.

* * *

James Hazen Hyde must like France. He has been doing no insurance business there. He will wear a new and expensive accent next Winter.

* * *

Our railroad commissioners have ordered extra heavy, hobnailed walking shoes. They positively refuse to ride on any railroad.

Senator Lodge will have his coat sleeves lined with zinc. Anybody can now see him laugh in them whenever Boston is mentioned in his presence.

Who Is a Christian?

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

WHO is a Christian in this Christian land
Of many churches and of lofty spires?
Not he who sits in soft upholstered pews
Bought by the profits of unholy greed,
And looks devotion, while he thinks of gain.
Not he who sends petitions from the lips
That lie to-morrow in the street and mart;
Not he who fattens on another's toil
And flings his unearned riches to the poor,
Or aids the heathen with a lessened wage,
And builds cathedrals with an increased rent.
Christ, with Thy great, sweet, simple creed of LOVE,
How must Thou weary of Earth's "Christian" clans,
Who preach salvation through Thy saving blood
While planning slaughter of their fellow-men!
Who is a Christian? It is one whose life
Is built on love, on kindness and on faith;
Who holds his brother as his other self:
Who toils for justice, equity and PEACE,
And hides no aim or purpose in his heart
That will not chort with universal good.
Though he be pagan, heretic or Jew,
That man is CHRISTIAN and beloved by Christ.

A Newport Diary

By Wex Jones

SHE'S GOT MY DUKE
Hunt

MONDAY.—Mrs. Trout gave a dinner last night about which all the crowd is talking. It was a fish dinner, and the guests wore bathing suits and swam around the swimming pool, seizing the food off the steps as they passed. Must do something to offset this.

TUESDAY.—Gave a bird dinner yesterday. All the guests perched on the backs of their chairs. Algy Hascoin fell over and cracked his skull worse than before. Swedish Prince coming here next week. Have John at work in Washington to get him for an informal party. Promised from Oyster Bay that the Prince chap will not be allowed to visit any house allied with the practical man of Wall street.

WEDNESDAY.—Went yachting today. Very pretty sight; all the yachts with their sails, or whatever they are, moving along. Quite reluctant to leave the veranda. Engaged Consul, the trained monkey, for a dinner party. Great success. Dr. Niefelkraut, the German scientist—a bore, but then everybody asks him—made every one laugh. He took Algy for Consul, and complained that he wasn't nearly so well trained as he had been led to expect. Algy quite complimented, as he said breeding was quite out of date.

THURSDAY.—After ordering 10,000 roses at $2.50 each for my dance I found a place where one more could have been put. Exceedingly annoying. Dismissed my secretary. She made quite a scene, saying her sister or some one was starving, and that I hadn't paid her last month's salary. Told her it was her own fault—that she probably stole more than that anyway, and that a check in full would be mailed to her next month in due course. She flared up and cried again, and I was quite relieved when I had her put out.

FRIDAY.—Swedish Prince is coming to us for luncheon. I thought I could foil some of the stuck-ups. While opposed to a republican form of government, I think this Rosefelt—or is it Roosfelt?—does the best he can in the sad absence of a monarchical spirit among the masses, who have, unfortunately, a voice in this Government.

SATURDAY.—Mrs. Trout has got the Prince after all. I am too prostrated to write.

SUNDAY.—Rained so hard there was nothing to do but church.
